Authorities Cautious

'Century's Greatest Art Find' May be Valued at $10 Million

Beverly Hills, Calif.—A Chicago art appraiser today hailed a set of paintings found under an immigrant's bed and in a closet as "the greatest art find of the century." He said they're worth 8 to 10 million dollars.

Some art authorities weren't so sure. They said they'd like to see the works for themselves.

Alexander Zlatoff, Mirsky, art appraiser and restorer who has his own studio, declared ten of the dozen paintings are masterpieces from the Italian Renaissance.

One of them he identified as the "Madallena" by Michelangelo de Caravaggio and valued at more than $1 million.

Folio Mrs. Hataburda

Even an announcement of the discovery came yesterday in Atty. Jerry Giesler's office, a rift developed between the owners and their agent.

Alfonso Folio, 40, a television repairman, and his sister, Mrs. Maria Folio Hataburda, of Pasadena, said they were greatly disappointed that Charles di Renzo, a friend who developed into their agent, had made the matter public.

"Friction developed out of nowhere," said Giesler.

UN Calls on France to Cancel Tests in Desert

Lipsticks May be Next Quiz Target of Food-Drug Agency

Some Coal-Tar Colors are Called Dangerous to Health

BY FRANCES LEWINE

Washington — Lipsticks may follow cranberries as the subject of the food and drug administration's next battle with industry.

Last month, FDA banned the use in lipsticks of certain coal-tar colors it said had caused death and illness in test rats. The ban, if uncontested, would have gone into effect Jan. 6, 1960.

Lipstick makers, in vigorous protests just filed with FDA,

Tells About Payments to Disc Jockeys

Philadelphia — A Philadelphia record distributor said today he has paid thousands of dollars to get records played on local radio programs. He estimated perhaps 20 of the city's 200 disc jockeys took "payola."

Edward D. Cohn, proprietor of Lesco Distributors—one of 16 record firms in town, said he paid disc jockeys $5 to $100 to play popular records he was pushing. He said he stopped the practice because it got too expensive to make it worth while.

"I got to the point where I would have to spend the profit from the first 10,000 records sold to pay the disc jockeys if I'd gone on," Cohn told newsmen.

No Names Mentioned
Cohn said he understood Philadelphia has the reputation of being the worst place in the country for "payola," a term in the music publishing field to indicate payments to disc jockeys for plugging records.

Cohn named no names or stations, but said "there are five stations in town today whose employees I never had to give anything to."

Cohn said he wasn't ashamed of giving "payola" as he hoped the practice would end. He said he listed the payments under promotion for tax purposes and paid the disc jockeys by check, except for one who made a practice of demanding cash payments.

Cohn was asked if Dick Clark was involved. "Dick Clark does not take a cent and never would," he replied.

Doerfer Fears Unwise Curbs On Broadcasts

FCC Chairman Says U. S. May Decree Censorship Action

Chicago — FCC Chairman John C. Doerfer said today congress may take hasty and unwise action unless the broadcasting industry itself quickly eliminates distasteful program practices.

He told Chicago's Television Bureau of Advertising, of his opposition to "introducing the obnoxious element of censorship into the field of broadcasting," he said.

"The spectre of a bevy of government clerks blue-penciling programs, with or without suggested substitutes, would be just as abhorrent in broadcasting as in the press, the pulpit, the stage, or the political platform," he said.

Wants Industry to Act
But he added that there exists "the possibility of the pendulum of public opinion swinging the congress too far into unwise reforms — that is, unless the public and congress are given immediate assurance" that the industry will take prompt corrective measures.

"Commercial utterances such as advertising are not entitled to first amendment protections," Doerfer said in a remark aimed at both publishers and broadcasters.

It is the first amendment to the constitution that guarantees freedom of speech and freedom of the press.

Request Expected to be Ignored but Is Considered Bitter Defeat for De Gaulle

United Nations, N. Y.—(AP)—The U.N. General assembly called on France today to cancel its atomic test explosions scheduled to take place in the Sahara desert.

But the French made it clear they will ignore the appeal.

The decision was a bitter defeat to France which, with the backing of the United States and Britain, had fought stubbornly to avert such a U. N. request.

The vote was 51 to 16 with 15 abstentions.

The two-thirds majority was achieved after the 82-nation assembly had watered down the original Asian-African resolution by deleting two paragraphs objected to by a number of countries.

These referred to threats to the people of Africa allegedly posed by the tests. In its final form, however, the resolution still expressed "grave concern" over France's intentions to conduct the tests.

The Asian-African resolution had been approved last week by the assembly's 82-nation political committee, but had failed by a slight margin to get the two-thirds majority needed by final approval.

The Sahara test issue came up after the assembly had given its unanimous approval to a U. S.-Soviet plan to refer all disarmament proposals to the forthcoming east-west meeting in Geneva.

The assembly's political committee, which includes all 82 U.N. members, approved the resolution last week. But the 46-26 vote (with 10 abstentions) fell short of the two-thirds majority required for assembly approval. At the time, there was speculation that the vote would fall similarly short in the assembly and France would eke out a technical victory.

But last night the political committee, by a 60-1 vote, approved a separate appeal to all nations to refrain from nuclear weapon tests, without mentioning the Sahara project. France cast the lone negative vote. The United States and Britain were among 17 nations abstaining.

France has made clear she intends to go ahead with the desert tests within a few months — with or without the approval of the general assembly. President Charles de Gaulle is anxious to join the atomic club — now limited to the United States, Russia and Britain — to strengthen his hand in the prospective summit talks and in his relations with Britain, the United States and West Germany.

Chemical Plant Fire in Japan Sets Off Blasts

Yokohama, Japan — A fire in a chemical plant touched off a series of gigantic explosions in a heavily populated Yokohama suburb today. More than 1,400 buildings were destroyed or damaged, and 376 persons were injured.

There were three confirmed deaths and 23 persons listed as seriously injured.

The death toll would have been huge, but word of the fire spread quickly. Before the explosions began, most of the workers within the plant had raced to cover in caves or behind earth and concrete bunkers built when the plant was a Japanese Navy ammunition depot.

"It was worse than a bombing — like a gigantic earthquake," said one witness.

Windows were shattered for a mile around. Debris crashed through the roofs of homes and business houses. Cut and bleeding schoolchildren ran screaming from nearby classrooms.

Jesse James' Nephew Dies at 82 in Missouri

Liberty, Mo.—Robert Franklin James, only son of Frank James and a nephew of Jesse, is dead.

The 82-year-old retired farmer died Wednesday night in a hospital here. Cause of his death was not announced.

He was the only son of Frank James, chief lieutenant of the Jesse James gang of train and bank robbers who plundered the midwest after the Civil war.

Algerians to Discuss Offer

Name 5-Man Team To Confer With French Officials

Tunis — The exile government of Algerian rebels today named a 5-man team—all in French prisons—to discuss the conditions of President Charles de Gaulle's offer of self-determination.

The move could be a big break toward ending the costly 5-year war in Algeria that has kept half a million French soldiers pinned down. But the rebel communique contained two points which could be stumbling blocks.

There was no immediate French reaction. President De Gaulle, who makes the French decisions on Algeria, was on a speaking tour and said he would make no comment until he returns Sunday to Paris.

The two rebel points:
Lay Groundwork
They said they were prepared to "discuss the conditions and guarantees of the application of self-determination" made by De Gaulle on Oct. 10.

They said there could be no cease-fire in Algeria without an agreement on how the offer of self-determination would be applied.

It seemed clear these points could not be discussed by the French without getting into political questions with the rebels—which the French government has refused to do.

The rebel offer to send instructions to its team as soon as the French government "accepts the principle of this meeting" came 10 days after De Gaulle renewed a year-old offer to give a safe conduct to a rebel delegation to come to Paris to discuss a cease-fire.

The Algerians turned down the offer a year ago. They wanted the talks on neutral ground and they wanted the agenda broadened to include political questions as well as a cease-fire.

Youth Charged With Beating His Teacher

Norfolk, Va.—A juvenile court hearing for a high school boy charged with beating his English teacher in a classroom was postponed today because the teacher could not appear.

James Wilbur Wiseman, 16, described by his teacher as "surly and resentful of authority," was detained in custody of juvenile officials. Wiseman, a tall, 175-pounder who had a height advantage but weighed the same as the teacher, is charged with aggravated assault.

The teacher, Lewis B. Stevens, Jr., 41, did not appear in court because he was having dental treatment for his teeth loosened by the assault.

300 Search Northport Swamp

Fear New London Boy Drowned in Wolf River

New London — Gregory Fischer, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Fischer, 1118 N. Water street, the object of a search by some 300 persons Thursday night, is presumed drowned in the Wolf river.

Two Appleton skin divers, Harold J. Engerson, 1517 E. Marion street, a member of the Appleton police force, and Frank R. Pierri, 1016 W. Summer street, arrived in New London about 10:15 a.m. today to continue the search.

It is feared Gregory's water repellent clothing may have given him enough buoyancy to keep him off the river bottom and his body may have been washed a considerable distance downstream by the current.

Gregory was last seen playing alone in the backyard of his home on the Wolf river about 4:30 p.m. by a neighbor.

Father Makes Search
Concern over his whereabouts was felt when his father, a mechanic at the city garage, returned home about 5 p.m. and searched the neighborhood for him. Police were called at 5:20 p.m. and the fire department was asked to start dragging operations at 6:45 p.m.

Trainer Attacked By Lion in Cage

Kansas City — A lion attacked trainer Joel Hartman after a performance of the Ararat Shrine circus yesterday and punctured his windpipe.

Hospital attendants said Hartman was in serious condition. He was bitten on the shoulders and throat.

The lion and its mate were purchased Wednesday by Paul Kelly, owner of the circus lion act. After yesterday's matinee, the lions were placed in one cage while their individual cages were being cleaned.

Hartman entered the cage alone to become acquainted with the lions. The lion knocked down Hartman and pinned him to the floor for about three minutes. Kelly and George Fraser, former owner of the animals, drove off the lion with a long-handled meat fork. Its mate didn't join in the attack.

Another trainer said Hartman had been attacked four other times. He lists Peru, Ind., the circus headquarters, as his home.

New London Volunteer Firemen poled a boat into open water in the Wolf river behind the Otis Fischer home Thursday night to start dragging operations in search for the Fischer's 3-year-old son, Gregory, missing since 5 p.m. Identifiable in the boat are Fire Captains Al Schafer and James Sullivan. Appleton skin divers joined the search this morning.

Steel Controversy Deadlock Continues

Hope for Settlement Dims With Union Rejection of Latest Offer

Pittsburgh —(AP)—Hopes for a settlement in the nationwide steel dispute were dimmer today after the United Steelworkers spurned the newest proposal of the basic steel industry.

R. Conrad Cooper, chief industry negotiator, disclosed the new offer yesterday. He said it was a "fair offer to do what can be done and still keep within non-inflationary bounds in the cost of steel production."

USW President David J. McDonald termed the proposal as "something only a company-controlled union would accept." He said the offer was just a rearrangement of "the same old package offered by the industry on Oct. 17."

Turned it Down

The new offer was submitted to the union Nov. 15 during secret negotiations between both sides. McDonald said the union's 33-member executive board turned it down the same day.

Had the proposal been accepted, said Cooper, it would have meant a 30-cent-an-hour package over a three year period. He added that the new offer also tempered industry demands for more say over working conditions.

McDonald disagreed, claiming that the proposal would mean a gain of only 24 cents an hour over the three year period.

"The only changes in the work rules issue are a stay of sentence in the same old attempt to deprive steelworkers of hard won gains and pro-

State Senate Gives Approval Before
Thanksgiving Recess

Madison —(AP)—Dr. Keith M. Keane, Appleton, was one of the new members appointed to the mental health advisory committee after state senate approval before the legislature took off for a Thanksgiving recess.

Decision to bow out until Dec. 1 and hold only informal sessions at which no roll calls will be taken, came after the senate acted on a few bills and several minor appointments Thursday.

During the informal session, which began today and continues through next week, only a handful of legislators will be present and they, by gentlemen's agreement, will take no major action.

15 Appointments

Fifteen appointments by Gov. Gaylord Nelson were confirmed by the senate but they did not include three that are expected to meet opposition from the Republican-controlled upper house.

Appointments approved included seven to the mental health advisory committee. The new members are Dr. H. Kent Tenny of Madison, John G. Werner of Milwaukee, Mrs. Francis W. Hurst of Madison, Louis Mato of Fairchild, Dr. Keith M. Keane of Appleton, Eli Tash of Milwaukee and Helge E. Pukema of Superior.

William H. Hughes of Madison and Ray J. Theisen of Eau Claire were confirmed as members of the credit union review board. Marvin Brickson of Madison and Paul A. Hemmy, Jr., of Juneau were confirmed as members of the Consumer Credit Review Board.

Others Confirmed

Others confirmed were: Francis E. Bachuber of Wausau as a member of the savings and loan advisory committee.

Francis Riley of Portage as a member of the state crime laboratory board.

Meyer M. Cohen of Green Bay as a member of the coordinating committee on state institutions of higher learning.

Jerry M. Chlecta of Jefferson as a member of the board of personnel.

Two bills passed and sent to the assembly would change present truck weight laws. They would increase maximum weights from 68,000 to 73,000 pounds and permit truck operators to shift cargoes to comply with axle weight limitations.

St. Louis Firm Executive Shot

St. Louis —(AP)—The president of the St. Louis County Water company was shot to death yesterday by a man on whom the firm had foreclosed a deed of trust.

W. Victor Weir, 57, was shot twice in the chest and three times in the right arm with a .38 caliber German automatic pistol.

A first degree murder warrant has been issued against Sam Iaconetti, 49, operator of a restaurant in the foreclosed building. Police said that after shooting Weir, Iaconetti fired one bullet into his own chest. He was in serious condition at a hospital but was expected to live.

Iaconetti, Weir, Iaconetti's nephew, John Via, 27, and a vice president of the Water company, Frank Dolson, met in Weir's office to discuss the foreclosure.

Dolson said they all talked for some time without a harsh word. Then, he said, Iaconetti stood up as though to leave, exclaimed "I guess I am ruined," whipped out the pistol and fired at Weir from about 10 feet away.

State Asked to Issue Farm Employment Rule

Order Would Cover Migrant Youth
Working in Fields During Summer

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — The state industrial commission has been asked to issue an order prohibiting the employment of "commercial agriculture" of children under the age of 12. The demand of the Governor's Commission on Human Rights arises out of its concern about the employment in Wisconsin canning crop cultivation and harvesting. Each year thousands of children of migrant families imported from Texas and other parts of the country go to work here.

The proposal of the commission is likely to generate considerable support.

Professor Forms Plan

The plan came from Prof. Elizabeth Brandeis, a University of Wisconsin teacher, who was asked to make a study of migrant child labor problems of the state. State and federal statutes provide exemptions from the normal child labor laws of agricultural employment, except as the commission may act, she reported.

The normal child labor laws of the state prohibit the employment of persons under the age of 16 during school hours or during the months that schools are in session, and below the age of 14 otherwise.

John Schmitt of Milwaukee, an officer of the big Brewery Workers Local AFL-CIO, asked the commission to demand also a minimum wage order applying to children. Other members of the group objected, saying that the issue is a different one and requires more study.

The commission evidently tried to make its proposal a

Labeling Plan Developed for Cranberries

Shoppers Told
To Look for Marked Packages

Washington —(AP)—A new labeling plan helped today to ease the cranberry scare.

The government Thursday assured housewives they didn't have to worry about including cranberries in their Thanksgiving menus—if the berries they buy are labeled as being safe.

Secretary of Welfare Arthur S. Flemming told berry shoppers to look for one of these labels:

1. "Examined and passed by the food and drug administration of the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare."
2. Certified safe under the plan approved by the U. S. government for cranberries. This statement must be signed by the packer or distributor who has the testing done in line with government procedures, Flemming said.

Misuse of the labels will be regarded as a crime, the secretary added.

Oregon Objects

Industry representatives here welcomed the agreement but in Salem, Ore., that state's agriculture director called it utter nonsense. Director Frank McKennon described as "comic opera" the plan which includes impounding of Oregon cranberries pending test and the use of labels on those tested. Oregon will not use the labels, he said.

A big inspection program was started last week. Since then, the government has instituted seizure actions against eight shipments of cranberries on the grounds they were tainted with aminotriazole. The latest seizure action came Thursday in Atlanta against a small lot of fresh Wisconsin cranberries.

Other actions have been against Washington state berries, two against Oregon berries and one against a shipment of canned cranberry sauce made from 1958 Massachusetts berries.

One official said it would cost from $25 to $50 to test a package of cranberries that cost only about 25 cents.

Family Paints, Dresses Up Tame Deer; It Still Is Shot

Monticello, N. Y. —(AP)—Baby, a tame deer who had the run of this Catskill mountain town, is dead. He was shot by a hunter even though he had "pet" painted on each flank and a red "plaid shirt" and pair of dungarees tied around his neck.

Baby, who ate spaghetti and meatballs, was adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Norman Pittaluga after the deer's mother was killed by an automobile. Every day the animal made a trip to meet the three Pittaluga children at the school bus stop. The animal also enjoyed eating hamburgers, bananas and canned dog food.

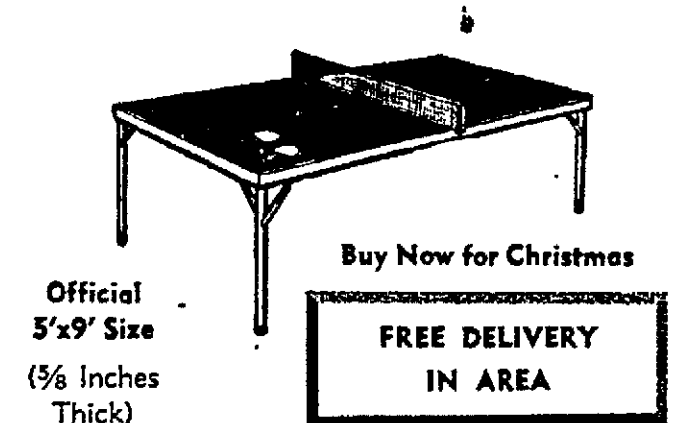

With the hunting season on, Baby was painted and dressed up to prevent his being mistaken for a wild deer.

The hunter, not identified, was asked if he didn't see the clothes around Baby's neck. The answer: "I thought he ran through a clothes line."

Didn't he see the word "pet" on Baby's sides? Reply: "I thought he fell into some paint."

Garroway Uses Show To Answer 'Smears' on His Use of Video Tape

Claims Recording Procedure Is No Secret; Airt Time Element

New York —(AP)—Television star Dave Garroway used a quarter-hour portion of his morning program today to answer what he termed "unconscionable smears" against the show, because of its advance recording.

Garroway said such smears resulted from a previous episode on the NBC "Today" program during which he showed emotional stress while speaking of Charles Van Doren.

Van Doren had just been fired from a $50,000 position with the network after admitting to congressional probers that he lied in denying he received help while a contestant on the former "Twenty-One" quiz program over NBC.

Garroway said the "Today" program had been attacked as deceitful in some quarters because his remarks had been recorded on video tape the afternoon before the program was aired.

Accused of Deceit

"We have been accused of deceit. Our integrity has been attacked. I feel I must answer directly now. When I'm accused of dishonesty I feel I must answer," said Garroway.

"This program is taped... the words I'm speaking now were recorded 144 hours ago. I thought everybody understood this. Apparently that is not the case."

Garroway went on to say that it was decided some months ago to record in advance the portion of the program seen in all time zones. Otherwise, he said, people on the west coast would have to get up at 4 a.m. to see it, since it begins at 7 a.m. in New York.

"There has been no secret about all this taping, no secret whatsoever. It was given all the publicity our press department could give it."

Garroway said press releases were sent at the time to newspapers, press services and magazines all over the country. He displayed newspaper clippings and magazine articles published as a result.

Not Dishonest

"When Van Doren was suspended our studio was besieged by reporters. None came in the morning... they came in the afternoon," said Garroway.

However, he asserted, that "when I broke down when I was telling about Charles, newspapers suddenly found out 'I was on tape.'"

In the ensuing hullabaloo, he said, news stories and television critics declared it was a dishonest use of tape recording. But, said Garroway: "To have edited or changed the incident would have been dishonest. What would newspapers and magazines have said if it had been suppressed, cut out?"

"Can you imagine what dark meanings the papers would have read into such an incident?"

Present Questionable Crane Berry Takes Infinite Care to Cultivate

BY CHARLES HOUSE
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Observe the cranberry, fruit of contention, pride of Wisconsin, roseate tradition of our happiest seasons!

Call it whortleberry which it is; or crane berry which it is, too; or vaccinium oxycoccus which is its universal Latin name. But whatever term you use — do it softly, gently, for this precious Wisconsin berry has been maligned and scandalized.

The pretty fruit has been thriving for countless centuries in Wisconsin's peat bogs, its marshes, its areas of muck and sand. Early French explorers noted that Wisconsin Indians harvested the fruit avidly and annually, for it is good to eat.

Wisconsin — once visited by ancient glaciers and watered by prehistoric lakes — has many thousands of acres of land suitable for absolutely nothing except the production of the wonderful tart, sweet-bitter fruit which fed the ancients.

Perhaps the first commercial sale of Wisconsin cranberries occurred in 1828 when, it is recorded, a consignment of three canoe-loads were brought by Indians from the mouth of the Yellow river (now Necedah) to the market place at Galena where they were exchanged for the goods of the white man.

Hybrid Grown Today

Today, the small native wild berry has been generally replaced by hybrid, (Vaccinium macrocarpus) which is bigger, better, tastier and even harder than its earlier, simpler brother.

Unlike Topsy, however, the cranberry does not "just grow." Time and patience and skill — and hope, too —

Do FALSE TEETH

Rock, Slide or Slip?

FASTTEETH, an improved powder to be sprinkled on upper or lower plates, holds false teeth more firmly in place. Do not slide, slip or rock. No gummy, sticky, nasty taste or feeling. FASTTEETH is alkaline (non-acid). Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTTEETH at any drug counter.

A threat of cold weather sends growers scurrying to the sulice box gates which they open to permit reasonably warm water to flow over the berries to keep icy winds from freezing them.

Some years wind may threaten to dry the berries too swiftly; or cold may make a sudden onslaught. The cranberry growers parry the thrust with flood, often as many as 75 times a season.

Flooding is necessary on most farms during the harvesting, too. Enough water is flooded over the vines so that the berries will float a little above the vines which bear them. Then mechanical rakes move over the mucky marshes with long, curved steel fingers combing the berries off the vines and depositing them in plastic "boats."

Insect Control

Water is used, too, for insect control. The flooding is done in June to lessen the depredations of the noxious fire-worm.

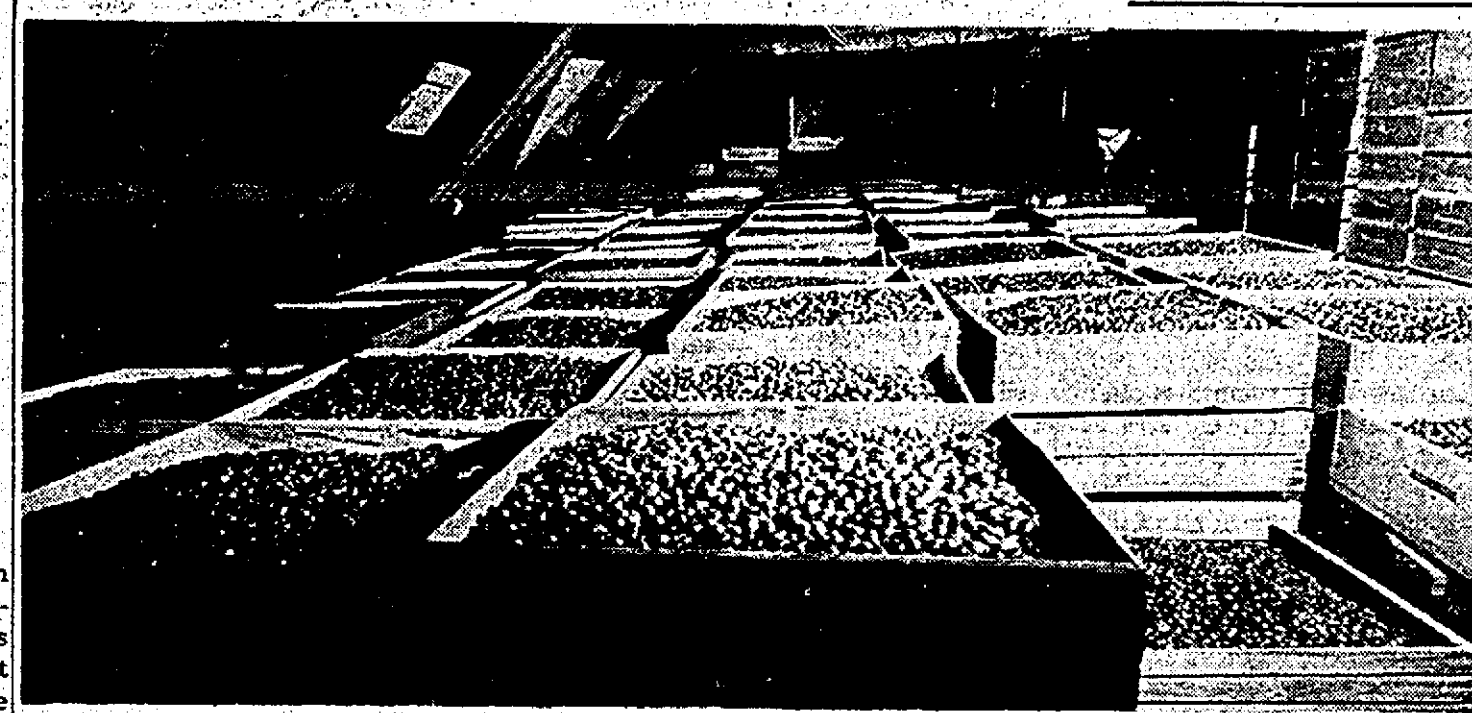

Then, at harvest's end, the entire marsh is flooded as a winter protection against the drying, tossing effects of the winter winds.

The growing season is a busy one; growers are not able to "just sit and listen to the berries grow." It is necessary, for good production, to use tons of sand spread thinly over the cranberry vines to encourage long stringers of vines to take root. If this is not done, the streamers get too long and they tangle enough to make the harvest difficult and piece-meal.

The vines must be pruned annually, too. This is done by use of pruning machines which traverse the marsh, cutting off the long streamers, encouraging growth of latent buds.

Reelect Officers Of AAL Branch

Black Creek — All officers of the Aid Association for Lutherans Branch 1152 were re-elected at a meeting at the Ambrosia room of the Elm Tree bakery.

Reelected were Alvin Schroeder, president; Harold Reihl, vice-president; and Edward Ort, secretary-treasurer. Richard Reihl and Mrs. Agnes Knutzen were named as delegates to attend the Federation convention at Clintonville in June.

New representatives, Mr. and Mrs. Duwan Glaser, were introduced. Mrs. Edward Ort gave a history of the branch.

Dr. L. A. Van Duke, professor at the State University of Iowa and chairman of a committee which drafted the new standards, said they had been approved by the high schools by a 9 to 1 vote ratio.

Lobbying Expenses Tax Deductible?

Representatives of the United States Chamber of Commerce and of the AFL-CIO stood shoulder to shoulder the other day in opposing an Internal Revenue Service rule which holds that expenses for lobbying are not deductible for income tax purposes. Since the Chamber of Commerce and the labor organizations are non-profit they do not claim the deductions but those contributing to them as dues-paying members are interested since they claim such dues are deductible as legitimate business expenses.

The paragraph in the Internal Revenue Service rules which brought forth the opposition is quoted as follows:

"Dues and other payments to an organization, such as a labor union or a trade association, are deductible in full unless a substantial part of the organization's activities is lobbying."

The rule on lobby expenses which the Internal Revenue Service now proposes to put in understandable form is that contributions by a corporation or an individual to the promotion or defeat of legislation cannot be deducted as an ordinary and necessary business expense on the contributor's income tax return. Lobbying is defined as "the promotion or defeat" of legislation, political campaigns and propaganda including lobbying type advertising.

Recently this question came up in another form when utility companies were denied the deduction of expenses used in advertising to oppose public ownership programs. It was held by the Internal Revenue Service that such advertisements were lobbying intended to influence legislation and were therefore not deductible.

The argument in favor of allowing such expenses as deductible is that the expenditures are made in fact to promote the business and are therefore as necessary as a new machine or an additional employee would be. It has been pointed out that companies often are required to make such expenditures or accept the alternative of going out of business altogether. Therefore, it easily can be said that such expenses are essential to the success of the business.

In the case of the utilities it was made very clear that their opponents, which were the publicly owned utilities, had all the advantages of lobbying and their expenses often were paid by the government itself.

Nevertheless, two wrongs do not make a right. Most people will recognize at a glance that if large corporations are to be permitted to spend unlimited amounts in lobbying and deduct those amounts from their tax bills the government will be paying to have its laws changed to the benefit of those companies. Since the government is the people, the results will perhaps be that the people are paying to have legislation written which is not entirely in their favor. Thus it must be clear that some form of regulation is essential but such regulation must be fair.

If publicly owned utilities are to have the advantage of the use of public moneys, the same privilege must be extended to the private utilities in the form of tax deductions. Likewise, if labor organizations are to be permitted to spend dues for what is called educational programs but which often are lobbying or electioneering, then the business organizations must be granted the same privileges. Here, as in most such cases, it is purely a matter of being fair to everyone.

A Fair View of Cheating

Melvin C. Willett, a history teacher in Freehold, N. J., was disturbed and worried because his high school students were inclined to condone the cheating that took place on the rigged television shows. Their attitude was that "since there is nothing illegal about rigging a quiz show and the money is tempting, it's pretty hard to condemn the practice."

Willett could see the right and wrong of the matter very clearly but felt he ought to do something to help the pupils understand it. He decided he would give his pupils a rigged test with the idea of making clear to them the right and wrong and the unfairness of the rigged shows. As soon as possible he put his pupils through a tough test on current events. Three pupils chosen from the class were seated at the front of the room near the teacher. During the test Willett wrote down the answers in plain view of the three sitting near him without offering any explanation.

Following their usual practice after the written test the papers were passed around so that students marked each other's. The three sitting near the teacher got 100 while the rest of the class averaged 25 to 40 per cent correct. Since the three chosen students were no better than the others under ordinary circumstances their outstanding record in this test surprised everybody in the class including the three winners.

Soon there was a demand to know why the three had done so well while the others had done so badly. There was some pretense at concealing the facts but they soon leaked out and the pupils with the low marks were highly indignant over what had happened. They complained that the test was completely unfair. The teacher suggested that there was no state law preventing him from giving out answers to certain pupils if he wished. Finally the story was out and the three who had copied the answers were deeply embarrassed and the teacher was accused of unfairness but gradually the lesson began to seep through. The experiment was repeated with other groups until nine students had accepted the easy answers and 105 had suffered the humiliation of the "unfixed contestants."

In the end it was pretty clear that all of Mr. Willett's students had a better notion about rigging in any group including TV shows and current events classes. It sounds like a good way of teaching this lesson.

Where Licenses Cannot Reach

Police in Texarkana, Ark., have arrested a man who draws public aid money for the blind as a hit and run driver charged with the death of a 4-year-old girl.

This arrest serves to emphasize the fact that the licensing of drivers, while a big help in keeping the incompetents off of the highways, is no sure protection for the public. Anyone can buy a car and drive it without a license until he is caught. Further, no driver is apt to be caught unless he is involved in some sort of accident. There have been instances of drivers being on the highways for 20 years or more without a license. Facts are revealed only after such a driver is stopped by a policeman and that is usually for some infraction of the law. This blind man — he had only half vision — apparently had been driving about Texarkana for some time. When he struck the little girl and drove away without stopping he was recognized by a bystander, otherwise he might never have been caught.

We have here a problem for which there is no known solution. In fact, this blind man may have been no more dangerous on the highway than many a driver who now is going about although his license has been suspended. Perhaps the confiscation by the state of any automobile driven by an unlicensed driver is justifiable unless of course it can be shown that the car was stolen. This would be an expensive thing for unlicensed drivers and the hope is that it would be too expensive for them to engage in it. Likewise it would put the burden on those who sell cars on time payments to be sure that the purchaser has a license and also upon those who might loan automobiles to be sure that those borrowing them have a license.

Advertising Makes Hit, Gallup Survey Shows

From The Shreveport, La., Journal

A study involving 1,616 personal interviews by the Gallup organization, the public opinion institute, turned up some very interesting views on advertising.

Seventy-five per cent, or three in four persons, said they like advertising. It keeps them up to date on what is new and on values.

Sixty-five per cent, or nearly two in three, believe their lives would be "more difficult" if advertising were to cease. That is how they have come to depend on advertising.

Another 75 per cent said that if faced with the choice of an advertised or a non-advertised product of equal cost, they would choose the advertised product.

Perhaps the most welcome finding, because, it refuted certain psychologists and sociologists, is that the most favorable attitudes toward advertising can be found among those groups with the highest economic, educational and social background. They refuted the idea that the wealthy and the cultured resist advertising.

The study was commissioned by Redbook magazine. As purveyors of advertising, we are grateful to it for these facts, because we are also convinced that advertising rings the bell with readers of all classes and rings the cash register for the merchants who use it well and continuously.

France's Desire to Have Summit In December Causes Uncertainty

From The New York Herald Tribune

General de Gaulle's decision that a summit meeting ought to be postponed until the spring has intensified uncertainty in the West. It is known that both the United States and Britain had envisioned a meeting of the heads of state and government some time in December. It is further surmised that President Eisenhower had suggested to the French that a "pre-summit" meeting of the western leaders be held at the end of this month or the beginning of next in order to co-ordinate their summit strategy.

The attitude of the French president must presumably shelve these plans, at least for the moment. Whether it is wisely taken is impossible to tell now. But it is based on a reasoned argument which we, as France's partner and ally, have to take into account.

General de Gaulle does not regard a summit meeting as merely another episode in the round of informal talks which have been taking place between east and west. For him it is a grand conclave of the highest importance, not to be undertaken hastily or lightly. It must depend on a continuing relaxation of tension. It must be preceded by meticulous preparation and consultation. Otherwise, how could the heads of state and government resolve in a few days the problems of Berlin and disarmament — to name only two — that have baffled the marshaled forces of world diplomacy for the best part of the past year?

The British, however, want an early meeting in order to capitalize on the "spirit of Camp David." They believe that the quicker the summit, the easier it would be to work out a modus vivendi on Berlin. Disarmament will be taken up in any case early next year by the 10-power conference at Geneva.

Washington has seemed receptive to both these points of view. Pains have been taken to point out, in support of a summit postponement, that the Coolidge disarmament report (a joint effort of the state department and the pentagon) will not be ready before January. In other words, it might be better to go to the summit with our disarmament dossier in perfect order, or at least in new order.

However, President Eisenhower has quite properly maintained a good deal of flexibility on the whole question of co-ordinating the Western approach.

As Hagerty said in August, the president remains "willing, in favor of, and believes it would be worthwhile to have a western summit meeting with our allies," and that he is ready to attend such a meeting at any time. On him, necessarily, will fall the chief responsibility for reconciling the western views. It is, fortunately, the kind of task at which he excels.

Observations About Democratic Intrigue.

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — The reelection of Patrick J. Lucey of Madison to the chairmanship of the Democratic party organization of Wisconsin over aging Herman Jessen, the party's national committee man, contains a good deal of pathos if the incident is regarded as a contest.

The margin of Lucey's victory considered on the face of it was impressive.

Yet some politicians reflecting about the curious situation at their leisure after the delegate rally at Milwaukee last week end may find in it some meaning that was not originally apparent.

For it was not a contest in the strict sense of the word. No practical politician would willingly assign to the top command of the party machine a man of 72 years who lives 300 miles from the state capital and has shown no evidence of the work habits or characteristics of mind that party generalship in a campaign year finds useful, if not necessary.

That some 300 of the delegates felt compelled to vote for Jessen, nevertheless, may be an important footnote to current politics. In a real sense this was a referendum on Lucey's stewardship and it is now shown that a quarter, at the least, of the most loyal of the activists have found it wanting.

It is not hard to deduce that another and perhaps more youthful candidate, who had prepared himself for the contest, could have given Lucey some real difficulty and, perhaps, unhorsed him.

THE MAN JESSEN

The incident, meanwhile, served to center some notice, however briefly, upon the man who became the Democrats' national committeeman three years ago but who has had strikingly little public recognition since that time.

Indeed, that lack of public recognition might have given rise to the angry challenge of Lucey and his southern Wisconsin cohorts by the upper Wisconsin veteran who was an expert in the highly disciplined Socialist politics of the early 20th century before Lucey was born.

Mr. Jessen may be thinking, as he now ponders what happened in Milwaukee, along the lines of some of the other old warhorses who find themselves virtually ignored at today's party rallies by youngsters who are merely bored by their recitation of ancient political history.

No political party machine in modern times in Wisconsin is quite as fluid as the present Democratic organization. Even an attentive reporter finds it difficult to spot really familiar faces at a typical rally.

It can be written as a virtual certainty that Jessen's days are numbered as national committeeman. The bold challenge of the Lucey group was serious enough, in a well-disciplined machine. But the terms of the challenge were deliberately offensive. Jessen said in effect that Lucey is mismanaging the party, financially and otherwise. Such thrusts would be difficult for the most tolerant politician to forgive or forget.

LUCEY FUTURE:

Lucey's recent experience will probably induce some caution in the impulsive and aggressive young leader in the future.

There had been some hints around Madison during recent months that all was not well in the personal relations of the party captain and Gov. Nelson, the titular leader of the Wisconsin Democracy. But during the convention that impression was freely publicized, so freely, in fact, as to lead to the suspicion that the stories might have been inspired for a purpose.

Had Nelson desired, beyond doubt, he could have toppled Lucey. He didn't do so, it may be guessed, not because of any special obligation to him or affection for him but because of a realistic desire to avoid a public and embarrassing and debilitating row.

Old Dollars Get In Circulation

Riverton, Wyo. — A new "silver strike" was reported in Riverton recently. But it wasn't a new mine — just an accident.

The First National bank began circulating 10,000 silver dollars minted in Philadelphia in 1886.

Coin collectors snapped them up. Prior to the Riverton "silver rush," collectors were paying up to $12.50 for one of the dollars.

Bank officials said the shipment of old dollars was received from the federal reserve branch bank in Omaha and put into circulation before they realized their value as a collector's item.

City's Equalized Value Too High

79 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of Nov. 20, 1880.

The county board amended the report of the equalization committee by adding to the equalized value of Appleton, over last year, to $530,000.

The committee has increased Appleton $128,000, which was a large increase. The board added over $30,000 to Buchanan, over $40,000 to Kaukauna, and only $10,000 added to Greenville, always an undervalued town, and the rest of the county left as heretofore.

The Mayor and common council should meet as early as tonight and at once take steps under the law to obtain redress of grievances!

Act promptly! The great imposition must be resisted to the last.

Friday, Nov. 16, 1934
Theodore G. Lewis, executive secretary to Gov. A. G. Schmedeman the last two years, was appointed by the governor to succeed the late Justice Walter C. Owen on the Wisconsin Supreme court bench.

Alvin W. Markman was elected president of the Appleton MacDowell chorus, a chorus of business and professional men in Appleton and vicinity. E. C. Rehbein was vice president and Louis W. Waltman, Jr., was secretary and treasurer.

Miss Marie Ritger, Appleton, a sophomore at Oshkosh State Teachers college, was taking an active part in extra-curricular activities at the school. She was treasurer of Marquette, Catholic society, secretary of the Wilton club, and circulation manager of the Advance, student publication. Gerald Frogner, Appleton, was elected treasurer of Lyceum, men's society at the Oshkosh school. Mr. Frogner was a senior.

Frank B. Younger, principal of Wilson Junior High school, gave a talk on Education at the meeting of John F. Rose chapter, Order of De Molay, at which education day was observed and the De Molay degree conferred.

10 YEARS AGO

Friday, Nov. 18, 1959
Election of three officers for the Latin club of Appleton High school resulted in Gretchen Hardt being named secretary, Helen Casper, treasurer, and Gerald Ristau, program chairman.

Mrs. Ed Zeigler was elected president of the Holiday Homemakers club at the home of Mrs. Clifford Bowers, Appleton. Other officers serving for the year were Mrs. Ben Jenkel, vice president, and Mrs. Phillip Brown, secretary and treasurer.

Officers were elected and Christmas projects and festivities planned when the Sacred Heart Christian Mothers' society met. Mrs. R. C. Kneise was appointed president for the 1950 season. Other officers named were Mrs. Robert Schindhelm, vice president, Mrs. C. J. Gebert, financial secretary, Mrs. Francis Fellner, recording secretary, and Mrs. Arthur Schroeder, treasurer.

Cpl. Richard J. Kimball, Appleton, was graduated from the basic airborne course of the infantry school at Fort Benning, Ga., as a qualified parachutist.

If the ban goes into effect as ordered, no new lipsticks can be made with the 17 forbidden color dyes. FDA spokesmen say there would be no action, however, against lipsticks already made and in warehouses and stores.

FDA, issuing the ban order Oct. 5, conceded that the amounts of the color which may get into the human digestive system from lipsticks are much smaller than the amounts fed the test rats. The rats were fed a diet that included from .25 per cent to 2 per cent of the dyes. No one is quite sure how much lipstick coloring the average woman swallows.

Many Objections
But, under the law, the government must ban the use of any coal-tar color that is harmful in significant amounts in the diet of test animals even though its use in smaller amounts could be safe.

There was an outpouring of objections from major lipstick makers, accompanied by demands for a public hearing.

Declaring the industry faced ruin, they said FDA acted too hastily and without conclusive evidence. "Tremendous amounts" were fed the rats compared to what they said were infinitesimal amounts humans might swallow from normal use of lipsticks.

The lipstick makers declared the colors had been used in hundreds of millions of lipsticks for more than 35 years without a shred of evidence that they have caused any

The director added that he had had no official connection with the Vatican for at least 24 years. An official of the Italian government arts department said Porcella is not on their list of first-rate and second-rate art experts although he may have become a recognized authority abroad.)

"We have always known the paintings were worth a great deal of money," Mrs. Hataburda said. "Of course, we didn't know how much."

The paintings have been handed down in the aristocratic Italian family for generations. They were shipped into the United States in 1946 by the U. S. Army among the personal effects of Hataburda.

Giesler was hired to represent Di Renzo, whose sister, Mrs. Mary Jane Russo, is Giesler's private secretary. It was De Renzo who, when shown the pictures, had them appraised.

Paintings Identified
"As far as I know from personal contact, I feel the works are authentic," Giesler said. He added that his clients have spent considerable money pursuing the matter.

In addition to the "Madalena," the paintings named by Zlatoff-Mirsky were: A picture of Bacco of Noah by Tintoretto, entitled "There Shall be Light;" Titian's semi-nude interpretation of his daughter, Lavinia; Bernardo Cavallino's "Saint Cecilia;" Luca Giordano's "Rape of Dejanira;" Tintoretto's "Moses on Mt. Sinai;" Artemisia Gentileschi's "The Annunciation;" Lorenzo Lotti's "St. Jerome;" Claude Gelle's "Lot with His Daughters;" and Raphael's "Madonna With Saints."

Art authorities were reluctant to comment publicly on the find. Most of them admittedly had reservations but expressed willingness to be shown.

Prof. F. Carlton Ball, head of the University of Southern California art department, said proof of authenticity of old masters involves much painstaking labor. Often at least three recognized experts must agree, after studying brush strokes and techniques, before the profession accepts the discovery, he said.

Furthermore, X-ray and radioisotopes frequently are used to confirm the age of canvas and wood used, he said.

Must See Pictures
Millard Sheets, widely known west coast artist and art authority, said Porcella's standing is recognized. It would be impossible to judge the pictures without seeing them, he said, and study by an expert who specializes in a certain period or field might be required. He said that the paintings are doubtless very valuable if they are what their discoverers believe them to be.

Folio said the paintings were obtained from their grandmother, who inherited them from her uncle, Cardinal Senna - Antonio, in 1887. The cardinal had inherited them from his cousin, Nicola Santoro, judge and secretary to Ferdinand, king of Naples, Folio said.

What will happen to the paintings now?
Di Renzo, Folio and Mrs. Hataburda have agreed the pictures may not be removed from the vault of Pasadena's First Western bank without signed permission of all interested parties.

"We wanted to put them on exhibit at the county museum," Hataburda said. "Di Renzo wants to display them in Chicago, but we definitely won't agree to that."

The Hataburdas and Folio have retained another law firm, O'Melveny and Meyers, to represent them. They did

Attlee Denies He Said Ike Second-Rater
Philadelphia — Former British Prime Minister Clement Attlee denied last night that he referred to President Eisenhower as a second-rate statesman and soldier.

During a press conference preceding the annual meeting of the United World Federal-ists, Attlee said he was misquoted.

The statement was attributed to the 77-year-old Attlee in Denver last Friday night as he began a speaking tour of the United States. It triggered a wave of anger both in the British Isles and the United States.

"I would never say that President Eisenhower is a second-rate anything," Attlee declared. "This journalist put the words into my mouth. I said two other things and he misquoted me."

Searchers in the swamp fought waist deep swamp grass, reeds and fallen willows over ground made slippery by frozen marsh water. They were armed with flashlights and the moon later in the evening helped light the tangle. However, no sign of the child was found.

The last search party started out under John Stein, Wau-paca county deputy conservation warden, and Fire Chief Feurig about 11:30 p.m. Organized activities halted about 1:30 a.m. today but friends of the family continued dragging throughout the night.

7 Lettermen On Kaukauna Cage Squad

Ghosts to Open Play Saturday
At Wausau High

Kaukauna — Coach Jerry Hopfensperger will have seven lettermen to pick from for his starting lineup as the Kaukauna High school basketball team opens the season Saturday night playing at Wausau. The squad has been through several scrimmage sessions in the last week including workouts against Appleton and East DePere.

Heading the returnees for Kaukauna is Leroy Weyenberg, 6-6 center, and the leading scorer in the Mid-Eastern conference last season. Other lettermen include Myron Zachowski, Jim Steger, Bill Borchardt, Ken Kavanaugh, Mike Landreman and Harry Gast. Bruce Vanervenhoven also saw some varsity action last season.

Probable Starters
Hopfensperger is expected to start Weyenberg, Zachowski, Steger, Borchardt and Kavanaugh against the Lumberjacks Saturday. Wausau will floor a veteran lineup against the Ghosts. The Lumberjacks had an 18-5 overall record last season and advanced to the finals of their sectional tournament before bowing out.

Heading Wausau's attack will be Tom Wendorf, all-conference selection and picked by a national sports magazine as all-state for Wisconsin. Other lettermen starters back for Wausau include Manner Cyr, James Hickey and Mike Schmickofer.

Following the road game, Kaukauna will play its first tilt at home Wednesday night with Sheboygan North furnishing the opposition. The Ghosts will have one other non-conference game on Dec. 1 at Fond du Lac. They open M-E play Dec. 4 at New London.

3,000 WATA Seal Envelopes Mailed By Woman's Club

Kaukauna — Members of the Kaukauna Woman's Club have completed work on preparing WATA Christmas seal packets, and placed approximately 3,000 envelopes in the mail Thursday. Kaukauna was cited along with 20 other state communities for its outstanding achievement in sales last year. Local increase in sales was 13.3 per cent over 1957, the highest rate of increase for any state community with a local tuberculosis association in the 5,000 to 10,000 population range. The Woman's club has accepted the WATA seal sale as an annual project. Mrs. Russell Brenzel, this year's chairman, has received a letter of congratulations for the 1958 effort from C. W. Kammeier, executive secretary of the WATA.

Iron Removal From Water Set At Newest Well

Utility Manager to Take Steps Needed
For Work Project

Kaukauna — William Ranquette, utility manager, has been authorized to take necessary steps preparatory to having iron removal equipment installed at the Well No. 8 pumping station.

The well, completed early this year, is currently furnishing the bulk of the water for the city. Heavy amounts of iron have been noted in the water and since original plans called for the addition of iron removing equipment, the utility commission ordered Ranquette to take steps to have it installed.

Future plans call for possible addition of similar equipment at other wells in the city. The Donohue Engineering company has been retained to complete plans and specifications for the equipment prior to advertising for bids.

Ranquette must make application to the state board of health and Wisconsin public service for approval of plans before work will get underway.

The well is located at Desnoyer and Delanglade streets.

Your Money's Worth

Joblessness Rate National Scandal

BY SYLVIA PORTER
You read the statistic "3,600,000" probably unemployed as of this mid-November, and while it makes you shudder a bit, it's still just a surface statistic. Look beneath it and what do you see?

You see mostly an unskilled man. The rate of unemployment among laborers is a startling 10 per cent — meaning one of every 10 jobless today is unskilled. In contrast, the rate of unemployment among professionals and technical workers is a scant one out of 100.

You see mostly a young person. Although the common idea is that the jobless person is an older worker, the percentage of unemployment in the 14-24 age group is far above the percentage in the over-25 category. The explanation lies in lack of skills. These jobless are what Dr. Seymour Wolfbein, manpower chief of the labor department, calls "the drop-outs, the ones who quit school before getting education and training."

Many Negroes
You see a Negro. The percentage of unemployed non-whites is double the percentage of unemployed whites. Of those jobless today for more than a half-year, one of four is nonwhite against one of 10 in the labor force as a whole. The explanation lies in the two characteristics already mentioned: The Negro is likely to be unskilled, to leave school early.

You see a person who lives in and once worked in an industrial city — quite probably one of the long-depressed coal mining, metalworking, textile, pottery centers in our land. The pools of joblessness still are in areas chronically distressed; most of the 400,000 who have been out of work for 26 weeks or longer are in regions hit hard by major industrial upheavals or migrations.

Admittedly, the key reason for the high total of unemployment today is the prolonged steel strike. We must not lose sight of the extent to which the strike has distorted the whole economic pattern. But again, this is surface stuff.

Joblessness to Rise
Beneath the surface is the fact that we soon will be into the winter months when seasonal factors always push up unemployment, and in February, 1960, joblessness well may be running over 4,000,000. Despite the post-strike rebound, the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate in early 1960 may be close to 7 per cent of our labor force.

Beneath the surface is the fact that even the sharp upsurge of 1959 did not touch the hard core of the long-term unemployed in our distressed areas, and no foreseeable boom is likely to touch it.

Beneath the surface is the fact that after each postwar recession the percentage averaged around 3.1 per cent; after the 1953-54 recession, around 4.3 per cent; after the 1957-58 recession, the normal seems to be around 5 per cent.

Beneath the surface is the fact that despite the great need for understanding the plight of the unskilled worker and solving the problem, pitifully little is being done about it. There is no evidence of a national information program or drive to expand training and apprenticeships.

And beneath the surface is the fact that while our chronically distressed areas cannot rehabilitate themselves without aid in relocating and retraining workers, attracting new industries, legislation to help achieve this has been stymied by apathy and squabbling in Washington.

Our lack of a national policy in view of the facts shames and degrades us all.

Courts Also Fail Outside Mississippi

Technicalities Block Action in New York State

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — "Failure to prosecute" has become a moral, if not a legal, defect in Mississippi, according to Attorney General Rogers. But will the sins of omission in New York state also be exposed to the same klieg lights of publicity?

Who is now to monitor the cases dropped by the department of justice here?

Possibly it was thought that it would be good politics nationally to point publicly to the failure of a county grand jury in Mississippi to render any indictments in the lynching of an accused rapist. The Federal Bureau of Investigation, according to Mr. Rogers, was ordered into the case and spent about $80,000 in the investigation, although it was later decided that no federal law was involved.

Should federal money be spent to investigate the strange behavior of the New York state authorities in the TV scandals? Although scores of persons lied before the grand jury more than a year ago in New York county, only one person has been indicted there for perjury.

Need State Responsibility
"I believe in states' rights," says the attorney general, "but I also believe in state responsibility."

Mr. Rogers called a special news conference to say it was clear to him "if the states are going to disregard responsibilities to the extent of not even calling witnesses" in such a case as the Mississippi lynching, "then the federal government must consider something else."

A study is needed of what causes lynchings and the extent to which technicalities in the law have been used to permit persons accused of crimes to escape punishment. A Negro given the death sentence in 1955 for murdering a white woman, again had his execution stayed and had been granted a new trial by the federal courts because no Negroes had been empaneled on the jury which convicted him. The attorney of Mack Charles Parker, the accused rapist, announced that he would seek the same relief for his client—one, which the supreme court has often granted in recent years. Gov. Coleman of Mississippi, who has repeatedly condemned lynching, has said that it was this possibility—that the accused Negro would go free on a technicality—which probably precipitated the lynching.

Blocks to Prosecution
Technicalities often interfere with effective prosecution. Residents of the national capital were reading Wednesday on the front pages about Mr. Rogers' interest in the Mississippi lynching case, while on another page was an item revealing a federal judge here had blocked the use of certain evidence against a suspected rapist in the District of Columbia, who happens to be a Negro.

The episode concerns a 33-year-old Negro woman who was forced into a garage, raped, and robbed of her purse. Two police officers went to the home of the arrested suspect and asked his mother if they could search the house for the woman's consent, and they found the billfold belonging to the raped woman. Federal Judge Youngdahl says this evidence cannot be used in court. He pointed out that higher courts have ruled such consent must be "freely and intelligently given," and said that the mother admitted the officers because she thought she had a duty to do so. The judge added:

Rules Out Evidence
"It is difficult to believe that this particular woman understood the significance of what the officers told her; it is quite implausible to believe she was aware of a search warrant was a prerequisite to a valid search." This kind of technical argument is often invoked as a means of ruling out important evidence in criminal cases. Another technicality supported by decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States rules out any confession made by an arrested suspect when there has been an "unnecessary delay" in arraignment him before a magistrate. How long a time can elapse before an arraignment must be made has never been determined by the supreme court.

Attorney General Rogers is to be commended for opening up the whole subject of why state grand juries or state prosecutors do not always prosecute. He might look into the shortcomings of law-enforcement agencies in various cities and towns in those states where steel plants are located and where the supervisory personnel of the companies were in recent months forcibly prevented or threatened with bodily harm when they tried to enter their own offices during the steel strike.

'Mack the Knife' Makes Comeback in Fox Cities

BY DICK DISC

"Mack the Knife" has returned again to torment the Fox Cities.

After basking in a record 2-month top place in this area, the Bobby Darin record slipped down to second place last week to come bouncing back to No. 1 spot.

The second place position goes to "Mr. Blue," top-notch of last week. Other tunes have stayed put — in the same positions as last week.

One new single appears on the chart this week. It's "Heartaches by the Number" by Guy Mitchell, in No. 6 spot.

Fox Cities Top 10

Here's the choice 10.

1. "Mack the Knife" by Bobby Darin.
2. "Mr. Blue" by the Fleetwoods.
3. "Primrose Lane" by Jerry Wallace.
4. "Don't You Know" by Della Reese.
5. "Whoo-Hoo" by the Royaltones.
6. "Heartaches by the Number" by Guy Mitchell.
7. "Lonely Street" by Andy Williams.
8. "Danny Boy" by Conway Twitty.
9. "Put Your Head On My Shoulder" by Paul Anka.
10. "True True Happiness" by Johnny Tillotson.

Top tune 10 years ago was "Slipping Around" and, according to Billboard, five years ago "I Need You Now" was a favorite.

New Records

Records in review:
"If I Had a Girl" by Rod Laurin. A new tune by a so-called future star in the record world. This is done in a chalyso style and is sung in a pleasantly sincere mood. The whole effort is backed up by a good beat and fairly top notch instrumental work. A nice record.

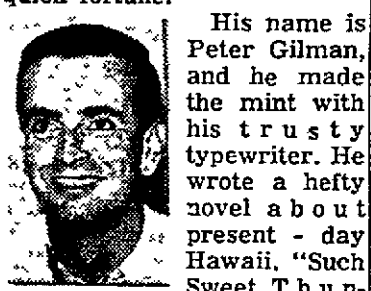

"This Friendly World" by Fabian is another ballad forcefully vocalized in much the same way as his previous hits. The single also is featured in Fabian's latest movie. It's sung softly, romantically, with a lullaby type tone. It's well done and is, as usual, directed exclusively to the teenage set.

"First Name Initial" by Annette is a rock number, done again in similar style to her other efforts. It features the usual rock technique and double voiced singing that has made her other numbers so popular. Once again well done and well sung; it could mean another success story for Annette.

Book on Hawaii Nets Fortune

Columbia Pictures Pays $100,000 for Peter Gilman Novel

Hollywood — Here's a TV figure who has made a quick fortune.

His name is Peter Gilman, and he made the mint with his trusty typewriter. He wrote a hefty novel about present-day Hawaii, "Such Sweet Thunder," that has been swept up for $100,000 by Columbia Pictures. That may well be the highest price paid by a studio to an unknown author.

Pete has been laboring in comparative anonymity as publicist for the film subsidiary of NBC, tub-thumping such series as "Not For Hire" and "The Lawless Years." That job ends Friday.

New York-born Pete went to UCLA and aimed at a news career. He worked for the Monterey Peninsula Herald, AP in San Francisco, Honolulu Star-Bulletin and Los Angeles Times before taking nine months while laboring part-time for a publicity office with such accounts as Sheena, Queen of the Jungle.

And was the book an instant hit?

"Nope," admitted Pete. "It was turned down by New York publishers, and my agent sent it back to me."

The author had already struck out with two previous books and was about to give up hope when he showed "Such Sweet Thunder" to a fellow publicist, Joe Morhaim. The latter enthused over it and interested Ted Loeft, lo-

Then came the Columbia deal and everything's coming up roses for Pete Gilman. As if that weren't enough, he's also engaged to talented Nina Shipman, 20th Century-Fox starlet.

"We won't get married until after I come back from Europe," Pete said. "What I've got to find out now is whether I can write another book. It was easy to sell one about Hawaii, which is currently in the news. My next one is about the big Sur country in 1937, and it will tell whether or not I am just a flash in the pan."

New Comedy Tryouts

Avoid Usual Cities

New York — The tryout tour of "Goodbye Charlie" deliberately has been avoiding cities that inspect most Broadway-bound shows.

George Axelrod, the playwright-director, said the aim was to stay out of reach of "the theater sharpies" and bring in an absolutely fresh and unseen comedy on opening night.

Instead of New Haven, Boston and Philadelphia, the comedy went to Detroit, Cleveland and Baltimore.

Not-So-Gentle Needle

New 'Information' Learned Daily From TV Commercials

BY CYNTHIA LOWRY

New York — Some people complain, but there are those among us who find television commercials highly educational. If it weren't for those frequent interludes in my viewing I wouldn't be half so smart as I am.

Where else, for instance, could I learn that:

Filter Trick
Shaving lather may soften sand so quickly that you can shave a piece of sandpaper without ruining the paper part?

Statues, particularly old Greek and Roman statues, have a perspiration problem?

The best way to find out whether you like a cigaret is to make sure that water can't pass through the filter? Girls who use hair spray have a better chance of catching fellows who waitz well than girls who use hair dressing?

Hammer Technique
You're likely to get your clean white gloves dirty if you stroke the hair of a man who uses hair tonic?

There are machines that tick like bombs and which can measure smells and stomach acidity?

That a headache is caused by a small hammer hitting an anvil in a small compartment in one's brain?

That some stomachs are round, others are square and still others are made of glass? And livers are shaped like an hourglass?

That most people with dental plates don't wear false teeth at all but round discs?

That you can pack the contents of a small truck into the luggage compartment of virtually any car?

All gasoline but the advertiser's not only leave horrible deposits in one's car but don't give good mileage?

Howton Enjoys Playing for Browns, Makes Team's Passing Game Go

Cleveland—(AP)—Give veteran Billy Howton credit for improving the Cleveland Browns' passing game. His acquisition has added to the team's strength as a contender for the National Football league championship.

A year ago, the Browns were weak in passing. They wound up in a tie for the Eastern conference title, then lost in a playoff to the New York Giants.

To get Howton, the Browns had to give up plenty in the trade with the Green Bay Packers—halfback Lew Carpenter and defensive end Bill Quinlan.

But Coach Paul Brown doesn't regret the trade one bit.

"No question about it, Billy helps to loosen up the defenses," says Brown. "They can't double up on everybody. Now Ray Renfro has a better chance of shaking loose."

"Howton has fitted into our squad well. I think it was a good trade."

Howton, a 29-year-old, 190-pound Texan, was thinking of quitting pro football last winter. The Packers had treated him well but it was somewhat discouraging to play for a team that never finished higher than third in his pro career.

"I really believe I'm enjoying this more than any other season," he says. "The Browns' organization is a good one. I like the way things are handled here."

It usually takes some time for a receiver to become accustomed to a passer, but Howton, the leading Browns receiver with 26 passes for 339 yards, has hooked up smoothly with quarterback Earl Plum.

Yanks Plan No Wholesale Changes Now

Baltimore—(AP)—George Weiss, general manager of the New York Yankees, said Thursday night the dethroned world champions "do not intend to go crazy and tear the ball club apart."

"We may make a shift here or there, but no wholesale changes are contemplated," Weiss said in an interview with a Baltimore Sun reporter.

Weiss is here for his annual physical checkup at Johns Hopkins hospital. He indicated he intends to confer while in town with Lee MacPahil, general manager of the Baltimore Orioles.

Bueno, Truman Win Doubles Championship

Sydney, Australia—(AP)—Maria Bueno of Brazil and Christine Truman of England won the women's doubles tennis championship in the New South Wales tournament today. They beat Mrs. Mary Reitano and Miss Fay Muller 6-8, 6-2, 6-2.

UW Duels Gophers in Final Bid for Title and Bowl Trip

Favored Badgers Fear Air Raid

BY JIM KLOBUCHAR

Minneapolis—(AP)—A wary Wisconsin was all but convinced today that Minnesota is plotting an aerial ambush that could blast the Badgers out of the Big Ten title and the Rose bowl if it works.

The Gophers gave plenty of advance warning against Purdue last week by throwing 36 times, a school record.

Another tip-off came Thursday when embattled Murray Warmath, perhaps coaching his last game at Minnesota, elevated Larry Johnson, the Gophers' passing quarterback, to the first team. Minnesota has been working secretly all week.

Nine to Hall

Johnson's passes to sophomore end Tom Hall nearly beat Purdue last week. He hit 14 for 30, nine of them to Hall.

So the Badgers come here today worried about air raids Saturday but also thinking about Minnesota's impressive size up front that should be made to order for a power game.

Actually, the Gophers have moved well on the ground all season—up to a point within reaching distance of the goal line. The team's inability to deliver on crucial plays in touchdown territory has doomed it to a last place finish. At 1-5 the Gophers now can tie for the cellar but can't get out.

Wisconsin, with everything riding on this game, will look to a young man who nearly enrolled at Minnesota four years ago.

This is quarterback Dale Hackbart, one of the most ac-

Salary War Looms as American Grid Loop Gets Ready to Draft

New Pro Circuit Meets Monday to Pick 40 Players for Each of Its Eight Teams

BY RALPH BERNSTEIN

Philadelphia—(AP)—Pro football officials in both the National Football league and the infant American Football league are approaching their draft meetings with allusions to the possibility of another full scale salary war.

Acting Commissioner Austin H. Gussel of the NFL foresees the possibility of a money battle but hopes it doesn't materialize.

Harry Wismer, president of the AFL's New York franchise and a league spokesman, feels the salary scale will go up but not high enough to hurt either league.

Wisner himself Thursday offered a case in point which could be the tip-off to things to come.

Appearing at a meeting of cigar executives in Philadelphia, Wisner announced that quarterback Richie Lucas would be New York's first pick in the AFL draft at Minneapolis next week.

New Battle

He was asked if bidding for a player of Lucas' pro potential wouldn't fire a new battle of dollars.

"We're not going to fight anyone," Wisner said, adding "I'd say Mr. Lucas will be in a commendable position."

Gussel, soft-spoken former FBI agent filling in for the late Bert Bell, approached the problem realistically.

"It is inevitable that in some cases there is going to be heavy bidding. Salaries are going to go up. I don't see how it can be prevented. But, of course, there are other things the players will have to think over."

"There is the fact that we are established and offer a player security. We have a hospitalization, insurance and benefit plan. The players know we've been here a long time and will be here awhile longer. We aren't looking for

Co-Leading NU Picked To Tip Illini

By Charles Chamberlain

Associated Press Sports Writer

The Big Ten's most balanced football race in history ends Saturday with the title and Rose bowl trip as bait for three teams.

Wisconsin and Northwestern enter the finale with 4-2 records. Michigan State also has 4-2, but winds up tonight in an interconference game with Miami in the Orange bowl.

If Wisconsin ties or loses at Minnesota, and Northwestern does likewise at Illinois, MSU would take the crown through the strength of playing one less conference game.

In Reverse

This, however, will work in reverse if either or both Wisconsin and Northwestern win. Winning may be harder than it appears.

On paper, the Badgers must rate close to an 8-point edge over the Gophers, whose only Big Ten victory in six starts was 24-14 over Indiana.

But Wisconsin was jolted, 9-6, by Illinois last week; the Gophers have the incentive of winning this one for Coach Murray Warmath, whose ouster is sought; and, traditionally, forms go out the window as the two teams meet for the 69th time in the conference's oldest rivalry.

Northwestern—beaten by Wisconsin and MSU in its last two starts—appears to be more hard pressed in its bid to down Illinois than Wisconsin in trying to defeat Minnesota. The Wildcats, a 1-point choice, will be matched in speed and have the disadvantage of meeting the Illini at probably the most inopportune time it could—Coach Ray Eliot's last game.

Pitched High

Eliot, a master of upsets, is retiring after 18 years to become Illinois' assistant athletic director. His boys should be red hot, although only a week ago he pitched them high to ambush Wisconsin.

Keeping them up should not be too much trouble in view that this is one they want to win for Ray.

In many respects, the Illinois-Northwestern rivalry is one of the hardest-fought in the conference. Each team has Green Bay—Bart Starr will start at Packer quarterback Sunday against the Redskins in City stadium.

In another move, Coach Vince Lombardi named John Symank to start at right safety in place of Bobby Dillon.

Starr—Starr deserves a chance, Lombardi said today in naming the 4-year veteran to his first game-opening assignment of this league season.

Good Performance

Lombardi was referring to Starr's 24-point performance in the 28-24 loss to the Colts in Milwaukee last Sunday. In addition Starr moved the club down to the 1-yard line twice a money war. It won't do any of us any good."

The AFL is going to take first crack at the college player grab bag. The new league meets Monday to draft 40 players for each of its eight teams—New York, Los Angeles, Houston, Dallas, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Denver and Boston. The latter became the final member of the circuit Thursday when Philadelphia Bob Carpenter passed up an opportunity to apply for a franchise.

Max Winter, general manager of the Minneapolis — St. Paul entry, said that each club will be required to pick four backs, two ends, two tackles, two guards and a center as its first 11 choices. He said this is the only way to prevent an imbalance with everybody going after the quarterback and other highly publicized backs.

The NFL's twenty-fourth annual draft is slated for Philadelphia Nov. 30. Each of the 12 member clubs will select 20 players—the number was reduced from 30 to 20 at last year's annual meeting.

Bobcats Meet Marquette '6' Saturday Night

Teams Were Rivals In Mid-America Loop Last Season

Green Bay — It will be a "battle of champions" when the Green Bay Bobcats and Marquette Sentinels of the Central Hockey league clash at the Brown County arena here Saturday night.

The Sentinels won the Mid-America Hockey league's 1958-59 schedule season title, edging the Bobcats by three points (11 games), while the Bobcats beat the Sentinels three straight to win the league's playoff championship last March.

Since that time, both teams have moved into the Central league. The Bobcats opened over the weekend, splitting a 2-game series with the Minneapolis Millers. They won their opener Friday night, 8-5, with the aid of a 4-goal second period, then lost the finale Saturday, 7-3.

It, however, will be the Sentinels' league debut. They drew a bye in the 5-team circuit's opening pairings.

The Bobcats will carry a 5-game winning streak over the Sentinels into Saturday night's game.

The Sentinels are built around a half dozen holdovers — Jim Demarini, the Mid-America's No. 1 goalie last season; Jimmy Jacobson, 17-year-old prodigy who had an early-season trial with the Detroit Red Wings; forwards Ron Johnson and Buckley O'Neill and defenseman Doug Peterson and Johnny Vas-seau.

After Saturday night's game, the Bobcats leave for Sault Ste Marie, Mich., and their first road assignment. They will meet the revamped Soo Indians, also in the Mid-America last season, Sunday night.

3 Newcomers

The Sentinels are banking on three newcomers to trigger a fast getaway.

One of the new faces belongs to Horner Reed, a wingman from Beverly, Mass., who is highly regarded in New England senior hockey circles. Reed, a Northern Michigan college student, joined the Sentinels only last week after helping F. L. "Frosty" Ferzacc's Wildcats compile a 6-2 record in football.

The other 1959-60 additions are Clarence Rivett, who played with Houghton's Pioneers in the Mid-America league last season, and Jim Drobnich, 20-year-old forward-goalie from Eveleth, Minn.

Saturday night's game has been designated as the first "ladies night" of the season. Every woman will be admitted for $1.

Ask Waivers on 'Whitey' Lockman

Cincinnati — The Cincinnati Reds today asked for waivers on veteran infielder-outfielder "Whitey" Lockman and General Manager Gabe Paul said he wanted to give Lockman his unconditional release and then hire him as a coach.

"We want to keep him in our organization because we have such a high regard for him," said Paul.

The Reds got the 33-year-old Lockman from Baltimore during the last season and in 52 games he hit .262.

Deny Billy Cannon Got $1,000 To Pose for Political Picture

Baton Rouge, La. — Former Gov. Jimmie Davis termed disgusting the accusation by an opposing candidate for governor that Davis paid All-America half-back Billy Cannon of Louisiana State $1,000 to pose for a political picture.

Berry

The accusation was made by Gale Berry, operator of a Lake Charles insurance agency and one of 11 candidates in the race.

Attended Breakfast

Berry, in a speech over a Shreveport television station, said Davis had the picture circulated to imply that Cannon was endorsing his candidacy. Besides the money, Berry said, Cannon received an offer of a good job.

Said Davis last night: "Mr. Cannon attended a breakfast in my honor, and was one of a number of those present I greeted and was photographed speaking with."

"For a candidate—or anyone else—to try to smear the good name of this young man is something I find disgusting. To even suggest that there was anything underhanded about this, or that Billy Cannon was guilty of wrongdoing in any way whatever, surely will strike all fair-minded people in the state of Louisiana as some kind of new low."

James Corbett, LSU athletic director, told the Associated Press that Cannon assured him that no consideration in any form was offered or received at any time.

complished Gopher hunters in the Big Ten. Two years ago, his two long runs beat the Gophers, 14-6. A year ago he guided the Badgers' easy victory at Wisconsin.

Like Minnesota, Wisconsin will show a national television audience and a Memorial stadium crowd of about 57,000 a muscular, tough line. Guard Jerry Stalcup and Tackle Danny Lanphear are the anchors.

Minnesota will try to augment Johnson's passing with the line shots of Tom Robbins, Rog Hagberg, Arlie Bomstad and Bill Kauth. Sandy Stephens, the sophomore quarterback who has been unable to get his footing in the Big Ten this year, remains a strong running threat.

Injuries will weaken a Gopher bid to close out another unhappy season with a flourish.

Also weighing against the Minnesotans is their youth. The squad has only six seniors with appreciable playing time behind them this year while Wisconsin has 17 on the roster.

By winning, the Badgers (4-2) would capture a tie for the conference title or win it outright depending on what happens between Illinois and Northwestern.

Washington Shoots For Host Spot In Rose Bowl

By The Associated Press

In addition to the down-to-the-wire Big Ten conference race, a bundle of other league titles and bowl bids will be up for grabs Saturday.

Only top-ranked Syracuse, which plays Boston university, is in a bowl, meeting the Southwest Conference champ in the Cotton bowl.

Ineligible for Bowl

The host spot in the Rose bowl and the Far West Five title may be decided Saturday. Fourth-ranked Southern California (8-0) is ineligible for a bowl but a victory over UCLA gets the Far West Five crown. Runnerup Washington (8-1) goes for the Rose bowl with a victory over Washington State.

The host spot in the Orange bowl and Big Eight conference title are tied together. Conference leader Oklahoma (4-1) can't return a second consecutive year so the battle looms between runners-up Kansas and Missouri, both 3-2.

Which play each other, and Iowa State (3-2) which plays Oklahoma. A Sooner victory eliminates the Cyclones, but reversal, plus a victory by Kansas or Missouri throws the Big Eight to a 3-way tie with the bowl spot up to the conference.

Bowl Possibles

The Southeastern conference, won by Georgia (No. 6) last week, has a number of bowl possibilities, including second-ranked Mississippi which is idle; third-ranked Louisiana State which meets Tulane; Tennessee which plays Kentucky and Alabama, which faces Memphis State. Georgia takes on Georgia Tech, also harboring bowl hopes. One of the SEC group will be in the Sugar bowl, with a rematch between LSU and Mississippi looming.

noon 24 times and there have been four ties.

One of the classiest upsets came in 1950 when Northwestern won 14-7 — a victory that swept Illinois out of the title and Rose Bowl and dropped it into fourth place in the final standings. It was about as close as the wolves ever came to getting Eliot.

In other close-outs Saturday, Ohio State (2-3-1) is at Michigan (2-4) in a toss-up; Purdue (3-2-1) is at Indiana (2-3-1) in an even Old Oaken Bucket scrap, and Notre Dame is a 14-point underdog at Iowa.

Athletic directors will vote Saturday night to send the "most representative team" to the Rose Bowl. The Big Ten representative is expected to be announced Sunday.

Jerry Reider Jolts
581 Threesome in
Grocers' Circuit

Althea Gaffney rang up the third best solo of the Appleton women's kegling campaign Thursday evening in Hahn's Navy league, a bustling 235 for Avenue Bar. She wound up with a 540.

Hupka's and Monterey Bar (21-12) share first place.

Jerry Reider collected a 581 trio for Park and Market in the Elks Grocers wheel. Bill Johnson slapped a 236 for the same team. Rougeau's (21-12) leads by one game.

Scores of 196 and 528 brought Pat Lutz honors in Hahn's Women's circuit. Her J. Fountain Lumber team (24-0) shares first with Haupt's Bar. There was no honor tally in the Elks Craftsman's wheel. Clark Cleaners (20-13) leads by 14 games.

In the Navy wheel other honor tallies: Marion Plach; 199; Elaine Krueger, 193; Marge Cavert, 192; Geri Wogsland, 191; Carole Ristow, 521. Shirley Jeffers had a triple of 144s.

Knickerbocker '5'
Deals Royals 8th
Straight Loss

By The Associated Press
No matter how you look at it, the New York Knickerbockers are in the wrong division of the National Basketball association.

As a member of the Eastern division, they are buried in the cellar even after three straight victories, including Thursday night's 130-109 triumph over the Cincinnati Royals. Their record is five victories and seven defeats. All of the victories have been at the expense of Western division clubs.

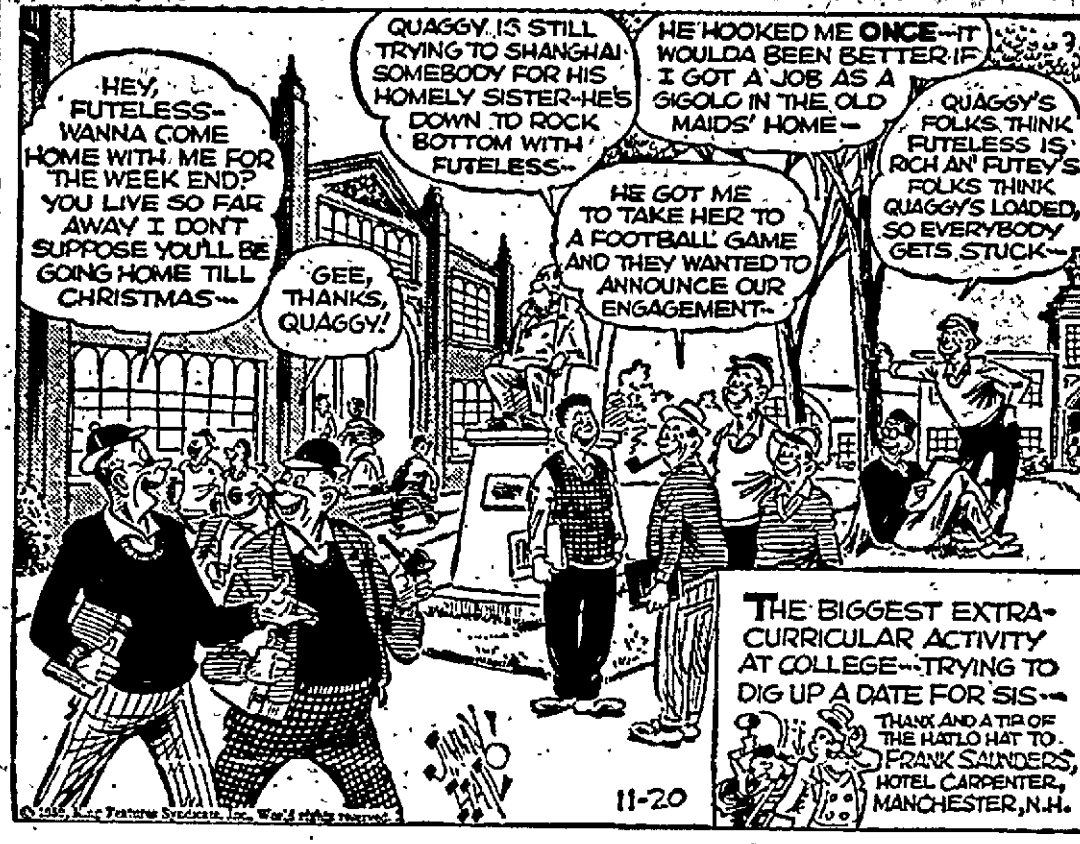

The Knicks profited by Cincinnati's ragged play. The defeat was the Royal's eighth straight.

Unofficial figures showed the Royals lost the ball 28 times without getting a shot while New York was guilty of only 12 such errors. The Knicks got a 25-point night from Richie Guerin.

Wilmer Runge Pastes
558 at Sherwood

Wilmer Runge of the Sherwood Wreckers turned in a 558 triple in the Sportsmen's league at Sherwood earlier in the week. Harbor Bar (17-10) leads Shady Rest by a half-game. There were no other honor counts.

They'll Do It Every Time

Time Out with Mike Drew

A couple of Appleton High school all-state athletes of the class of 1958 — Jack Ullwelling and Bob Eggert — are continuing to distinguish themselves on the college sports front.

Eggert started for the Miami (Fla.) university football team in the Navy. Participating in 19 plays, Eggert earned a perfect 100 score in the grading of the game film by Miami coaches.

To Fly Home
Eggert and his roommate — former Terror all-conference lineman Dave "Butch" Verkuilen — plan to fly back to Appleton for the Christmas holidays. That is, unless Miami should get a bowl bid. This could come about if the Hurricanes, now 5-3 on the season, beat Michigan State tonight and Florida next week.

Miami's lone losses thus far have been to LSU and Auburn, third and twelfth, respectively, in the latest AP poll, and to Kentucky. The Hurricanes are rated eighth in the nation.

Verkuilen, a junior who plays the same position as Eggert, reportedly hasn't been seeing much action. Nor has Neenah's Kent Simerson, another lineman.

Ullwelling definitely will not be home for Christmas. Jack has been working on the University of Wisconsin basketball team's first string.

"How much do you weigh, son?" asked Woodward.

"240 pounds," Christjohn replied.

"And you're a non-letter-winner?" Woodward said, looking incredulous.

"Boy, you'll be a big man when you grow up."

"Big Enough"

Speaking of size, Terror Coach Ade Dillon told the banquet audience he hoped for "normal growth" from all the AHS juniors except one, Ed Felauer.

"At 234 pounds he's big enough," said Ade. Dillon doesn't care how big junior tackle Larry Feistal (227 pounds) grows.

"Just so long as he still can run run," remarked Ade.

He'll need it with one of the smallest JV squads in years coming up.

At last week's Terror JV banquet, Dillon related that

Other Fox Valley sophomores who are battling for UW first string berths are Shawano's Marty Gharrity and Green Bay's Tom Hughbanks.

Ullwelling, who pledged a fraternity last year, but has since de-pledged, is again living in the UW dormitories.

Hughbanks, Jack's roommate last year, is now living in a fraternity house and Ullwelling has a single room. He's happy with his entire set-up.

At a practice session earlier this week, Kimberly High Basketball Coach Gil Frank kept re-running films of the controversial traveling call against the Papermakers' Don Hearden in the 1959 state tournament so many times that the film broke.

Frank wanted his players to see the movie of the game, with Milwaukee Lincoln, to refresh in their minds "all the mistakes they made." It was his way of fighting possible over-confidence — since four starters are back.

During Wednesday evening's Appleton High school football banquet, University of Wisconsin Assistant Freshman Football Coach Vern Woodward asked junior Bob Christjohn to stand up after Christjohn's name had been read as a Terror "non-letter-winner."

"at the beginning of the season we couldn't find shoes and pants small enough for some of our JV players." But the coach said that the club did a fine job of overcoming

Northern Wisconsin Still Has Best Deer Hunting, Asserts CD

28,399 Killed in First 5 Days; Statewide Season Starts Saturday

Madison — Northern Wisconsin still holds the best deer hunting prospects. That word came from the Conservation department today with a plea to hunters to take advantage of the situation in the weekend ahead.

The statewide season opens Saturday and hunters who did not bag game in the northeast and northwest sections that opened last week stand a good chance of their trek northward, the department claims.

"Plenty of hunting pressure in counties just south of Highway 8 would mean a better than average chance of success in that area," says John Keener, conservation department game manager.

Starr, Symank Start Sunday Against 'Skins'

against the Bears; the previous Sunday in relief of Lamar McHan, who suffered a muscle pull.

McHan is ready but Lombardi said "He's not 100 percent."

The Packer coach said his decision to open with Starr is based on the good job the holdover QB did vs. the Colts. And he added, "nobody has this club made."

4th Start

Starr will be making his fourth start, counting two exhibition. He opened vs. the Bears in the non-league opener and lost in the last 40 seconds on a Bratkowski-Casares pass. He started vs. the Redskins in Winston-Salem and ran into all sorts of evil early and Joe Francis came out of the bullpen to pull the Bears through.

His next action came in the last few minutes of the big loss to the Rams in Milwaukee. McHan, who drove the Packers to three straight wins at the start of the season, ran into injuries. He hurt his shoulder in Baltimore and then shared the job with Francis in the New York game. McHan started vs. the Bears and pulled a muscle late in the second quarter when Starr made his appearance.

Looking Better

Symank has been looking better in each of his brief appearances at safety. He got the call when Bobby Dillon suffered a muscle pull in the second quarter of the Colts game. Lombardi said Symank had shown considerable improvement from earlier in the season. Dillon has been hobbled some by the injury but could regain his health by Sunday.

A new problem developed today when Hank Jordan failed to report for practice. He went out to West Virginia with his wife to attend the funeral of his wife's mother who was killed in an auto accident last Friday. He was expected back before today.

Tickets are still available for Sunday's game. It's hoped that the game will go all the way — 32,150, thus providing a tremendous talking point for bringing six league games here in future years. This could be a "test" year.

$10,000, $5,000 and $5,000 for scorebook, fence and opening-day button sales, respectively. (This would give the club a $20,000 start before getting anyone in the park, he noted.)

Receipts for 1959 totaled $77,052.67. Major revenue sources, other than those already mentioned, were gross concessions, $20,763.92 and major league working agreement, $9,310.

Expenses totaled $7,554.12. The biggest individual items were r.e.r. player salaries ($21,119.08), concession purchases ($8,418.97) and hotel and meal bills on the road ($7,722.26).

A feeling persisted that a change of affiliation from Washington to Baltimore would prove one means of stimulating attendance. Business Manager Bob Willis gave a brief background of the change in tie-up and came up with this encouraging observation: "The Orioles, in the last three years probably spent more money on player development than any other club in baseball."

Willis said that of 32 "most wanted" young players bid for by the 16 major league clubs last year, Baltimore came up with nine. It's possible that as many as eight players in the $25,000 or more bonus class could play for the Foxes in '60, he said.

Give Assurance

Willis noted that Fox Cities officials have impressed on Orioles brass the importance of the Foxes getting off to a good start next year. "They assured us they would do everything in their power to do it," said Willis.

Among promotional ideas suggested were queen contest and more Little League events.

McClone touched briefly on the Green Bay Bluejays situation. "The new group there must raise $7,500," he said. McClone believes the group will make this goal and again stressed how important it is for both Wisconsin clubs to succeed together.

Several members of the audience suggested the use of the word "Appleton" somewhere in the Fox Cities name on the grounds that the games are all played at Goodland field, that the city helps maintain the park and that the location would be easier to pinpoint in other parts of the country.

Others, during the brief discussion, maintained that the "Fox Cities" concept is growing in a number of fields and that it has now become a familiar designation. It was further argued that all parts of the Fox Cities are represented on the board of directors and that the club represents the whole area.

Wissman Cited

The suggestion was adopted, that for geographic clarity in other parts of the country, the parent hetical designation, "Headquarters in Appleton," be included on Fox Cities correspondence and all official baseball business.

Upon Judge (and Club Director) Andrew Parnell's recommendation, those in attendance applauded Wissman in recognition of the "tremendous job" he's done as baseball club treasurer since 1940.

Other officers reelected by the board are Joseph Schouten, vice president; S. M. Timmers, treasurer; Bob Biesmann, assistant secretary; and Bob Eiting, recording secretary.

and Lisle Blackburn of Marquette and Rodger Ward, auto racing champion.

St. Pius X HSA To Sell Yule Trees

St. Pius X Home-School association will sell Christmas trees to raise money for school maps, globes, encyclopedias and library books, the association decided Thursday.

Sister M. Julitta, diocesan supervisor of schools, described the importance of HSA activities to the parents. It is especially important for a new school to have a strong association, she said.

Aussies Retain 7-Stroke Lead

Thomson Shoots 68; Snead Has To Settle for 73

Melbourne — A third straight sub-par round by Peter Thomson held Australia's now almost insurmountable 7-stroke lead over Canada today as all other hopes for the Canada cup golf title, including those of celebrated Sam Snead and Cary Middlecoff, drowned under an avalanche of bogeys.

Thomson, 4-time British Open champion who grew up within a stone's throw of this Royal Melbourne course, added a 2-under-par 68 to his previous rounds of 67 and 69 for a 54-hole total of 204. This gave him a 1-stroke edge over Stan Leonard of Canada in the individual competition.

Final Green

Leonard sank a birdie putt of 8 feet on the final green for a 69 — one of three sub-par rounds this humid day — for his 205. Snead remained third with a 73 for 211.

Thomson's brilliant round offset a mild blowup by his partner Kel Nagle who soared to a 76.

The Australian team total, with one round left to play, was 420 followed by Canada at 427. The United States and South Africa are tied at 433.

Snead and Middlecoff soared 8 strokes over par and left the course grouching over lack of practice and unfamiliar playing conditions. Snead got his 73 after a good start while Middlecoff, his once proud and precise game in tatters, shot a 75.

Tighter Anti-Bias State Laws Asked

Human Rights Commission Unit To Recommend Changes by 1961

Madison — The state legislature will be asked to refine and make more effective the "denial of rights" law which has prohibited discrimination in public places since 1895, the governor's commission on human rights decided Thursday.

The commission of 35 civic, church and civil liberties leaders endorsed a preliminary statement which held that the law has not kept pace with times and conditions, and directed a committee to work out a new draft that will be offered to the 1961 legislature. Post-Crescent Editor Victor I. Minahan is a member of the commission.

David Rabinovitz, Sheboygan, will be chairman of the drafting committee.

Discrimination Illegal

Recent court decisions have indicated the law is not sufficiently broad to prohibit all instances of denial of rights, discussions showed, and the purpose of the amendments will be to make such discrimination illegal in any place of public business or service.

The Wisconsin law for decades has been hailed as one of the model acts of the country and provides criminal and civil sanctions for enforcing prohibition of discrimination because of race, religion, color, national origin or ancestry.

"It has been a great aid in eliminating racial and religious discrimination in hotels, motels, restaurants, taverns, barber shops and other places of public accommodation or amusement," the committee report acknowledged.

Hotels Included

"But the law has not kept pace with the times. There are now some other areas where the applicability of this law is unclear. This must be eliminated if we are to achieve our goal in making Wisconsin a better place in which to live."

(A recent complaint involved a Milwaukee Negro woman who was denied admission to a physical reduction parlor. Members of the commission and others' concluded the discrimination law did not clearly apply.)

Matt Schimenz, chairman of the state industrial commission, and Virginia Huebner, head of its fair employment practices division, told the commission about the policies of their offices.

Few Minority Groups

Schimenz said his travels around the state since he became head of the labor department last summer have persuaded him that problems in the employment of minority group members are largely confined to southern Wisconsin industrial cities "because there are no minority groups in the other parts of the state."

Miss Huebner acknowledged there is a problem to enforce the fair employment practices act in some of the craft occupations because of the indentured apprentice program. Only a handful of Negroes have been approved for apprenticeship in Milwaukee, she conceded, with the result that few Negroes are being admitted to skilled trade unions.

She reported also that her office has not worked out an enforcement program for the 1859 state law which prohibits discrimination in employment because of age, as well as the older prohibitions against race, creed or color. She has asked Atty. General John W. Reynolds for guidance, she said.

The annual Junior Red Cross enrollment got underway Nov. 1 in public, private and parochial schools throughout the Fox Cities area, except in Appleton.

(Appleton public schools are not against the program, but school policy does not permit solicitation for non-school purposes on school time in school buildings.)

The junior activities, a supplement to the school program, are guided by teacher sponsors selected by school principals.

Among the Junior Red Cross activities are: gift box program in which schools prepare and send boxes filled with articles ranging from toys to health items; the school chest program through which needed school and health supplies are sent abroad by American high school students, and the school album program, which tells, through drawings, photographs and essays the life and activities of the towns in which American children live.

Each year outstanding junior members are selected to attend the training centers around the nation, and since 1850 have been representing the American Red Cross on international study visits to Europe and the Far East.

County Judge To Join Panel Talk on Court Changes

Victor Riesel To Talk Set Dec. 8

County Judge Stanley A. Staidl will appear on a panel discussion of the Wisconsin court reorganization act during the 43rd annual meeting of the Wisconsin Board of Juvenile Court and County Judges in Milwaukee Dec. 2, 3 and 4.

The panel will discuss what changes are needed in the law, practical problems of court functionings, status of the register in probate and the organization and structure of the boards of criminal, juvenile court, county and circuit judges.

Judge Staidl is one of seven panelists. The discussion will be on the last day of the meeting. Other discussions will be on parental responsibility for delinquent, dependent and neglected children, jury instructions and the role of the juvenile court.

Peabody Manor to Benefit From Annual Holiday Charity Ball

BY CAROL RICHARDSON.

Couples attending the 27th annual Charity ball of the Infant Welfare circle of the King's Daughters Dec. 5 will be contributing to worthwhile projects while enjoying themselves in a gala holiday setting at North Shore Golf club.

The traditional ball is the principle fund-raising project of the circle and all proceeds will go to its foundation, which in turn will contribute the money to the Peabody Manor Home for the Retired.

The Appleton Visiting Nurse association will manage the home.

Established in 1931, the foundation is a corporation providing a perpetual organization for receiving and distributing funds to charity. The first gift to the foundation was made in 1931 by Infant Welfare circle members who raised $15,000 through work projects.

In 1943 Mrs. Angeline Freeman Kitson willed the foundation its next gift and other bequests were made by Miss Dina Green in 1949 and by Charles S. Boyd and Frank J. Sensenbrenner in 1952.

These gifts, as separate funds of the King's Daughters were invested and only the annual income from each is distributed according to specific regulations.

A board of directors and a 6-member distributing committee appointed annually by the Infant Welfare circle and members of the foundation manage and distribute the funds.

Past Donations
In the past, welfare work by the foundation has included partial payment of hospital bills; eye, ear and dental aid; layettes and clothing; bedding and other household furnishings; food and fuel; and medicines for families who have had no other way to obtain help in time of need.

Schools, hospitals and the VNA have all received such gifts as furniture and furnishings, a piano, incubator, sewing machine and one-hand typewriter.

When the ball's tradition was begun in 1929 funds were used for the endowment of a maternity bed at St. Elizabeth hospital and proceeds from later balls were used to provide milk for needy children of Appleton whose families were not cared for through relief agencies.

War Halts Ball

During World War II years, the Charity ball was discontinued and the VNA special projects funds was the beneficiary when the event was resumed in 1946. Another project of the Infant Welfare circle's Charity ball was redecorating a classroom for handicapped children at Morgan school. The foundation's funds were used for a school library and equipment for orthopedic students.

A donation from the foundation with proceeds from the 1959 ball will be made to the Peabody Manor for the second consecutive year. The Infant Welfare circle proposed to support the project for five years with an annual pledge of $1,000.

The circle has long had a special interest in the VNA as its members organized the group in 1946 and the current treasurer of the circle, Mrs. George Cameron, represents it on the VNA board.

Tickets were distributed to circle members attending the meeting at the home of Mrs. E. J. Woody, 140 Anton court, by Mrs. Tom Frawley, general chairman of the dance. She is being assisted by Mrs. Fred Heinritz, Mrs. Robert Belle and Mrs. Tom Driscoll, sectional ticket chairmen.

A report on ear muffs sold by members was given by Mrs. Eugene Sage, sale chairman. Mrs. William Hatch and Mrs. John Harkins, reported on the Christmas basket to be donated to a needy family.

Mrs. Guy Barlow, Jr., and Mrs. William Plankuch gave the council report and Mrs. Robert Scherzinger reported on the blood bank. Members approved a contribution to the National Foundation.

In Good Taste Woman Has Problem in New Town

BY EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please tell me how to correctly handle the following situation: We have recently moved to a small town. I have always called myself Mrs. John Brown, and cannot bear to be called Mrs. Jane. As far as I can tell most of the women here prefix Mrs. to their own first names. My question is, how can I join in community activities and avoid having Mrs. tacked on to my Christian name in club listings. The problem is further complicated by the fact that my husband holds a rather important position in this small town, so I must be very careful not to give the impression of being a snob. Is there a tactful way to cope with this problem?

Answer: Your wish to be known as Mrs. John Brown is definitely correct. But as a newcomer you cannot set yourself up as a critic of an established community custom without endangering your popularity. You can give your own name as Mrs. John Brown but if they do not choose to follow this form in their listings, then I am afraid you will have to submit to Mrs. Jane—at least until you have become an established member of the community, and then explain that you happen to dislike your own name and do like to be called by your husband's.

Nurses' Graduation
Dear Mrs. Post: Recently we attended a nurses' graduation which was held in a well-known church in this city. As the graduates marched into the church, the members of our party stood up along with a few others, while the majority remained seated.

Answer: You were correct in showing courtesy to the graduates by standing.

Concert to Include Waterman Tribute

A memorial tribute to the former dean of the Lawrence conservatory of music, the late Carl J. Waterman, will highlight the concert by the Lawrence college symphony orchestra directed by Kenneth Byler, at 8:15 p. m. Sunday in the Memorial chapel.

The 61-piece orchestra has chosen Rachmaninoff's "Vocalise," Op. 34, No. 14, as the dedication to Dr. Waterman. "Vocalise" is a song without lyrics which has been transposed for orchestra. Other selections on the program include works by Handel and Haydn, a rarely heard composition by Bartok from the composer's early period, and a folk song suite by the English composer Vaughan-Williams.

Weighty Brigade Raid

If you want to reduce, beware the bedtime snack!

Your chances of losing weight are cut two ways, when you make a habit of a late-late repast. Needless to say, the practice overdraws on your calorie allotment for the day. But even more important, what you eat is sure to be stored up as fat.

The body-slakes its furnace when you go to sleep, and utilizes only 400 calories per hundred pounds of body weight in eight hours. When awake, active people use up more calories in a half hour than during a night's sleep. It is the unused calorie, day or night, that produces excess weight.

Although many reducers are aware of the danger, they continue their midnight raids on the ice box and give all manner of excuses. The main one seems to be, "I'm so hungry, I just can't sleep."

Whether that excuse is true or false, it cannot be shrugged off. Such dieters need help and here it is: Rob Peter to pay Paul. From a meal, save a dessert, salad or glass of skim milk and have it at bedtime.

That way, you save some calories and a lot of misery.

Painless Reducing
To lose up to ten pounds without a struggle, send for my leaflet, "Painless Reducing." No rigid dieting, no heavy exercises, no discomfort! All advice is sane, safe, easy-to-take and effective. Japanese Cosmetic Leaders Tour States

The glamour and lure of the orient has taken on new meaning as Americans welcome 20 business leaders representing the Tokyo Cosmetic Industry association. Part of a European and American tour, made expressly to exchange beauty concepts with our top cosmetic people, the Japanese Cosmetic Industry officials landed in New York from Paris on Nov. 6, and arrived in Chicago on Nov. 13 for a 7-day stay.

After their Chicago trip they will visit Los Angeles and San Francisco before leaving for Tokyo.

These key business figures bring with them irresistible news of the beauty habits of the ever-beautiful and exotic Japanese women.

Reaches New Height

Interviewed in Chicago, executives of the Arimino Chemical company, Ltd., in Tokyo, Arimino Tao, president, Motomu Isobe, technical director and A. Ray Tominaga, manager of the foreign department, stressed that the cosmetic industry in Japan has reached new heights in the last three years, and from all indications it is only the beginning.

Fascinated by the chic and perfectly groomed American women, Tao felt they were more adept in make-up and hair styling than any other women he had observed on the trip.

In Japan, he asserted, of the female population of 50,000,000, over half are at present devoted cosmetic users.

Hair coloring has also gained in popularity in Japan, with most women favoring light brown tones. The majority of women use hair

UNICEF, Egypt Join To Fight Eye Disease

Cairo — A nurse in a snow white starched uniform picked up a barefoot crying child, brushed away the flies from his face, and told him she was going to paint pretty pictures in his eyes.

The nurse was testing for trachoma—an infectious eye-disease often leading to blindness.

Four of every five Egyptian village children suffer from trachoma according to the United Nations Children's fund (UNICEF).

The disease is not in all cases in the active or infectious stage. Active and advanced trachoma impairs the vision and can scar the eye through eyelashes curving inwards. It often causes blindness especially among children.

Due to Fly

The widespread infection of this disease is mainly due to the common fly—which probably does more harm in this country than anywhere else. The fly's dirty work is made easier by the congested living conditions in the Nile valley sprays, hair dressings and get salon permanents at least twice a year.

Follow U.S. Trends

Make-up, in all its modern versions, has been completely adopted by Japanese women, and they follow American trends avidly. The chic city women of Japan are only now starting to use perfumes with any regularity, and rely mainly on French scents. Beauty life in Japan swings back and forth between the classical and the modern... modern by day—classical in private life. All indications point, however, to the new role beauty care now plays in the life of the Japanese women, which will unquestionably influence our own approach to beauty in the future.

With our Japanese visitors comes the beauty heritage of the Orient which has done more to shape our thinking and approach to beauty and fashion in modern times than any other culture. The current visit of experts from the Tokyo Cosmetic Industry association pinpoints the exchange of ideas and meeting of minds, and firmly establishes the international language of beauty. It will unquestionably open new vistas to be pursued and studied by both our countries.

where almost the entire population of close to 27 million is squeezed into about 14,000 square miles, less than five per cent of Egypt's total land area.

Infectious trachoma as a rule ends with teenage but the disease remains in the system even though eye scarring may be slight or absent. The government has initiated a major experimental program which, if successful, will be applied to the whole country.

A number of villages in the very thickly populated (over 1,000 persons per square mile) Galyup province just north of Cairo were selected for the trachoma project.

Many Infected

A survey revealed that four children out of every five had trachoma. Nurses making the survey told the frightened children they were painting pictures in their eyes as they took smears with thin wire rings.

Treatment cycles then followed in all the schools. Nurses appointed to each school applied eye ointment to each student twice daily for a period of six months. The nurses then trained the older children to apply the ointment to the younger ones.

Results showed a 50 per cent drop in the number of active cases among children in the villages treated.

The second step was to bring the treatment into the homes. Mothers were brought in groups of 30 into village centers and instructed how to apply aureomycin. Each mother was given several tubes of the ointment to take home.

The ministry of health hopes, when final results come in, the home and school treatment will bring down the trachoma cases by 75 per cent.

The next step will be a nationwide campaign.

Your Problems

Fiance's Parent's Guest List Shocks Parents of Bride-to-be

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: Our daughter is engaged to marry a boy from a well-to-do family. We are people of modest means. Last evening we met with the boy's parents to discuss the plans. When Mrs. J. gave me the list of family and friends to be invited to Ann Landers' dinner, I almost went through the floor. I kept our list down to family and 26 close friends. Her list was 210. I told her we couldn't have such a crowd. She replied, "Don't be a fool, Marie. We've given beautiful gifts for 25 years, now it's our turn to collect."

I told Mrs. J. she could invite anyone she wished to the church, but she said, "They won't send a nice gift unless they're invited to the dinner."

My husband is shocked. I don't know what to do. We just can't afford what she has in mind. —Mother of the Bride

Dear Mother: Tell Mrs. J. she'll have to get even with her friends another way. Since you are paying for the wedding it's up to you to decide how much to spend.

It's not unheard of for the groom's parents to give a big dinner the night before the wedding. If Mrs. J. wishes to do this tell her you have no objections.

DEAR ANN: You won't print this because it doesn't fit in with your antiquated morals, but here goes anyway.

After 10 years of marriage and four children, I discovered I was in a rut—romantically speaking. All the excitement and fun was gone. I felt like an old man at 40. So, I met a young girl with lots of zip. She made me feel young again.

I have too much honor to sneak around behind my wife's back, so I told her. All she said was "We're married for life—so forget about a divorce. I hope you come back to your senses before you ruin your life."

Well, I saw this girl about three times a week for two months. Then I realized I belonged at home. Never once did my wife nag me. When I told her I was "home to stay" she said, "Fine. It's about time."

I'll never step out again. My wife handled the situation just right. I got the running around out of my system and everyone is happy. If more women were smart like my wife there would be fewer divorces.—Home to Stay

Dear Home: So what do you want from me—a good conduct medal? Just because your wife didn't have herself measured for a straight jacket doesn't mean she wasn't deeply affected by your disgraceful behavior.

You're lucky to have a wife with strength to "stand by" while you got bored with your new plaything. An orchid to her—and a bouquet of skunk cabbage to you, Sir.

DEAR ANN: Last Sunday three couples decided on a spur of the moment to go to a rather nice place for dinner. One of the fellows didn't have a necktie on so my husband lent him one of his best ties. During the evening a live cigarette ash fell on the tie and burned a hole in it. My husband wanted to be polite. He said, "It was an old tie, forget it." The fellow laughed it off and so did his wife. I am burned up. What should be done?—Bella

Dear Bella: Nothing now. Your husband closed the door. The fellow who borrowed the tie should have the good sense to replace it in spite of your husband's remark but it would be awkward to suggest it now.

To learn the knack of feeling comfortable with the opposite sex, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Be Date Bait," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.) (Copyright, 1959)

Iranian Delegate Pities U.S. Women on Equality

BY DOROTHY ROE

"We think it's a shame that American women have been pulled down from a position of superiority to prosaic equality," says suave, handsome Abdol Hossein Hamzavi, Iranian delegate to the United Nations.

"Women should be cherished, respected and shielded from all the unpleasant things of life—such as voting."

The polished diplomat speaks out that in his native land live some of the world's most beautiful, cultured and brilliant women, beloved by their husbands, revered by their sons—products of one of the world's oldest civilizations. He has little admiration for America's bustling career girls and working wives. Says he:

"In my country the majority of marriages are arranged by the parents, and they usually work far better than the effervescent and immature marriages of young couples in America."

Divorce is easy in Persia—I prefer my country's old name to its new one. A man has only to say three times, "I divorce my wife," and the deed is done. Yet statistics show our divorce rate to be about one-millionth of that of the Western world."

Can an Iranian woman obtain a divorce by the same simple process?

"Well, no," says Hamzavi.

"Divorce is a man's responsibility—like other unpleasant things in life. But now, for the first time, an Iranian woman can get a divorce, by proving cause and establishing legal grounds; through the courts. It's harder for her, but possible. However, few Iranian women—or men—want divorces."

Hamzavi says. Americans could learn some valuable lessons from Iranian family life.

"We feel that family education is far more important than anything else," says he. "In an Iranian family the mother is the final and absolute authority. Her word is law. As an ambassador, aged 48, I would not dare sit in the presence of my mother until she bade me do so."

"We have no juvenile delinquency in my country. We don't even have such a word in the Iranian language. There is no need for it because juvenile crime is unknown there. We believe in child discipline. We believe that a child should listen and learn during his formative years, and should express his own opinions only after he is wise enough and old enough to weigh them."

"What you have been at in America for 180 years, we have been working on for thousands."

Celebrates Anniversary Iran will celebrate in 1960 the 25th anniversary of the lifting of the veil. And although Iranian women still do not vote or hold public office, there are many Iranian girls in colleges, both at home and abroad, studying for the professions. Coeducation became a law in Iran in the middle 1930s, and at present, says Hamzavi, there are a million and a half girl students in the country studying in 1,700 schools. Says he:

"We always have felt that a man and a woman constitute a whole—and the woman is the heart of the matter. Please don't think I am criticizing all American women. I just feel sorry for them. They should not be required to carry the great burdens placed upon them. In their constant striving for equal rights, in their frantic competition in the business world, so few attain happiness."

"As a matter of fact, the trouble is not with American women, but with American men who so often do not discharge their duties as head of the family. Maybe the trouble is that as women become strong, their men grow weak."

This Defensive Duck Helps Defeat Declarer

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD

U. S. Master Team Champion
This whole week has been devoted to the duck—not our feathered friend, but the play in which you give up an early rather than a late trick in a key suit. This play is just as useful to the defenders as to the declarer.

Opening lead—S 4
West opens the four of spades, and East wins with the king. East returns the six of spades, and South plays the queen.

What happens now depends on the caliber of the players. If West is just an average good citizen, he will take the queen of spades with his ace. "Caution you that time" he will say to himself with satisfaction.

This marks the end of effective defense. South can win the third spade with the jack. Declarer loses the club finesse to East's king, but East is out of spades and equally out of anything else that looks like a trick. South wins 10 tricks, making his contract with an overtrick.

West Should Duck

Mind you, I haven't said a word against good citizens. About one-tenth of them will make the right play at the second trick. West must duck the second spade. That is, he must play low—allowing South to win the trick.

This gives South nothing that he's not entitled to: He must get one spade trick sooner or later. From West's point of view, better sooner than later.

South must try for the clubs, losing to East's king. Now East still has a spade. He leads it, and this time the rest of West's spades are good, and he defeats the contract by leading his established spades.

West's refusal to win the second trick would be easy if he could see his partner's cards—as declarer can see the dummy. Such plays are harder for a defender than for the declarer, but good players must work them out.

Daily Question

Partner opens with one spade, and the next play is passes. You hold: S-Q J 10, H-A Q J, D-K 6 5 2, C-9 8 4. What do you say?
Answer: Bid two diamonds. You cannot jump to 2 NT with an unbid suit wide open and you cannot jump to three spades with only three trumps. All you can do is mark time with a new suit and make sure of reaching game eventually.

Simple Care Will Keep Baby's Mouth Healthy

By Dorothy V. Whipple, M.D.

Don't try to wash the inside of a baby's mouth. Chances are you will put a lot more dirt in than you take out. The normal saliva in the mouth is nature's way of keeping the mouth clean and for the vast majority of babies it is quite adequate.

The inside of a healthy baby's mouth looks pink and it glistens. You can often see the outlines of the teeth in the gums. At the time of birth all the teeth of the first set are already formed and are waiting patiently under a thin layer of mucous membrane for the right cue to push through the gums and make their appearance.

Sometimes a mother can see these teeth so clearly she is sure her baby is ready to have teeth. But it usually is not so. Even though teeth are there they await their appointed time before they push out of their nest. The mucous membrane over the molar teeth in the back of the baby's mouth and over the canine or eye teeth is often thinner and paler than the rest of the mouth. This is quite normal.

Once in a while a baby has one or two little pearly-white cysts on the sharp edges of his gums. They look a little bit like teeth (especially if you're not quite sure what the teeth should look like) but they do not make a click sound on a spoon. These cysts are of no consequence and disappear in time.

Mouth Infection

One infection of the mouth that is fairly common in young babies is called thrush. It looks like patches of milk stuck to the sides of the baby's mouth. You notice it most on the inside of the cheeks and over the tongue, sometimes on the roof of the mouth. If what you see in your baby's mouth really is a little scum of milk it should wash away with a drink of water. If it doesn't and you attempt to scrape it off the underlying mucus membrane will bleed slightly and look inflamed.

Thrush usually makes a baby's mouth sore. He is likely to fuss when he tries to nurse. Thrush doesn't produce a fever or make the baby sick—it just makes him uncomfortable. In "the mouth" sometimes you see thrush in the mouth of a baby who doesn't seem to mind it a bit.

Thrush is an infection caused by a fungus. It occurs most often in bottle-fed babies when the nipples are not kept clean. It spreads quickly from baby to baby in an institution where the sanitary conditions are not all they should be. However, thrush pops up now and then in the most carefully cared-for baby.

See the Doctor

If you suspect your baby has thrush be sure to consult your doctor right away. Like almost every disease, if you catch it early it can be cured before it becomes severe. Your doctor will first diagnose whether or not your baby has thrush and will give him treatment which usually clears it up in a few days.

Thrush is almost always a disease of quite young babies. It is seldom found in older children or adults. Do not confuse thrush with a more serious disease of the gums—trench mouth. Trench mouth occurs in children and grown-ups but very seldom in babies.

Aminotriazole was never supposed to touch a cranberry. The manufacturer clearly specified this on the label. If the directions had been followed, the cranberry growers would have spent their usual enjoyable Thanksgiving.

The same is true of all the other sprays on the market. The department of agriculture continually checks them, taking them off store shelves

But there is no policing of the individual farm to see just how the spray is used. The government, can extend its protective arm only so far.

A department of agriculture official who works closely with the pest control problem provides probably the best answer to the question of how the public health can be protected against the chemical sprays.

"We'd have a devil of a time doing that," he said. "If a farm truck operated by Milton G. Christel, 47, route 1, Kiel.

Miami Rain Eases Today; More Expected

11.13 Inches in 30 Hours Floods Streets, Hits Crops

Miami, Fla. — Rain which poured 11.13 inches of water on Miami in 30 gusty hours, let up today, but may be not for long. The weather bureau predicted further showers.

Thursday, there was a day-long deluge. Numerous streets were flooded bumper deep and some were impassable. Hundreds of cars drowned out. No residents had to be evacuated, although water lapped into many a front door.

Business in the uptown section came to a virtual standstill, and no sightseeing buses were seen hauling tourists who chose to spend the day in dryness and comfort of their hotels.

Drive With Care

Motorists who did venture on flooded, rain-slicked streets drove with such care that the police department reported fewer accidents than normal.

Three high school football games Thursday night had to be postponed.

The heavy rains were confined to southeast Florida. Ocean Ridge, a small community 13 miles south of Palm Beach, had 6.98 inches and Pompano Beach, near Fort Lauderdale, four inches in a few hours.

Miss Everglades

The worst of the rain missed the crop-rich Everglades farm lands south of Miami, averting an over-all crop disaster in Dade county, the 12th ranking vegetable-producing county in the country.

Losses Great

Individual losses, however, were expected to be sizable among the 18,000 to 20,000 acres of winter beans, tomatoes, squash and other crops now in the ground.

The rain was caused by moisture-laden northeast winds blowing off the Atlantic into a cold front that stalled over the state two days ago, bringing near freezing weather to north Florida — but nothing but rain to Miami.

Total rainfall for the year here rose to 85.89 inches — far over the 75.65 inches that fell all year in 1948, the previous wettest year of record.

Dry weather was the rule in most other sections of the country, excluding western Washington. The rains in Washington were confined mostly to coastal areas.

Temperatures were near seasonal levels in most areas, with no severe cold. Southerly winds fanned warmer air from Texas northward and northeastward to Kansas and western Missouri and to the lower Mississippi valley. Readings were in the 40s and 50s.

(Appleton also enjoyed dry weather. However, a heavy cloud cover blocked out the sun. The 5-day forecast calls for clouds but no precipitation.)

Light Snow Mixed with rain is forecast for the upper lakes, eastern part of the upper and middle Mississippi valley and the northern Rockies tonight. Continued cold is in prospect for New England and colder temperatures are due over the southern Rockies.

3 Per Cent Rate Asked in Low Tax Brackets

James E. Doyle Requests Hike For More Revenue

Madison — An influential Wisconsin Democratic politician today suggested a substantial broadening of the state revenue base, through heavily increased taxation of lower income brackets under the state personal income tax.

James E. Doyle, Madison, former chairman of the Democratic state committee, reporting as chairman of the subcommittee of Gov. Nelson's revenue study commission, asked for a 3 per cent starting rate instead of 1 per cent with one-half per cent Wisconsin Democratic politicians in each bracket of personal income to a total of 10 per cent over $14,000. The proposed maximum rate would be slightly lower than the top effective rate under present tax laws.

Doyle reported his conviction that new money for the state treasury and for local property tax reductions can only be used through a broader income tax policy, or through enactment of a general sales tax.

Personal Preference

He indicated his personal preference for the income tax alternative and said it fits better the history and present structure of the present revenue system.

Doyle observed that "many economic and political groups seem loathe to acknowledge" that major revisions of Wisconsin tax policy must come.

He added: "In a federal system the competitive factor among the states imposes a practical limit upon the revenues which can be drawn from Wisconsin business and industry."

He told fellow members of Washington — In his dedication sermon today at the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter, St. Louis, Mo., called the ceremony one of the most significant in the history of the Catholic church in the United States.

Lutheran Parish to Begin
Construction of $86,000 Unit

Neenah — St. Mark's Lutheran church will begin construction of its own church building Sunday by holding ground-breaking ceremonies after its 9:30 a. m. worship service.

Congregation members will go to the 3-acre site on Green Bay road after the service. The Rev. Charles Luhn, pastor, will turn over the first shovel of ground on behalf of the congregation.

The Rev. Dwight H. Sheldahl, director of the Synod of the Northwest, who has organized 20 mission churches in this area, will be a guest-official.

Also participating will be the Rev. Samuel H. Roth, pastor-emeritus of St. Paul's Lutheran church, which is the "mother" congregation of St. Mark's.

St. Mark's Lutheran congregation, organized in February, 1958, at a meeting last week sanctioned building of a first unit at a cost of $86,000. Subsequent to this action, it received final approval, this week of the Board of American Missions of the United Lutheran Church in America to begin construction.

Begin Next Week

Plans call for construction to begin next week on the building which will include a Sunday church school wing as well as a sanctuary that will seat nearly 200.

Contracts have been awarded to Nimmer Construction company, Kaukauna, as general contractor; Angermeyer Heating and Plumbing company, Neenah, for heating and plumbing; and Uptown Electric, Waupaca, for the electrical work.

St. Mark's church, organized with 165 adult members, now has 215 adult and 394 baptized members.

The congregation has been meeting for the last 15 months in the Boys' Brigade building after having spent its first year in two neighboring buildings in the vicinity of Main and Lake streets.

Robert Erdmann, chairman of the building program, is assisted by William Dresser, Earl Jacobson, Robert Kuehl, Lyle Pingel and Forrest Stuenkel.

School Head Explains Cut Of $37,000

Band Uniforms,
Proposed Budget

Neenah — The $37,000 cut by the school board from its 1960 budget request includes several maintenance projects and some instructional equipment, Supt. of Schools Harold B. Mennes explained today.

Not deleted from the proposed school budget are $7,500 for band uniforms and $9,000 for a new bus since one of the buses now used is 7 years old.

All of the $37,000 cut has not been allocated to various projects as about $8,000 in unspecified items is included in that figure.

New Lighting Out. Among the items removed from the proposed budget are $5,000 as the first step for new lighting at the high school, $2,000 for a new roof on the athletic field house, $2,700 for resurfacing the Washington and Lincoln school playgrounds, $1,000 for repair of bleachers at the high school and $2,000 for the Roosevelt school service systems.

Also taken out from next year's work were $500 for resurfacing and refinishing the Washington and Kimberly basketball outside courts, $1,000 for exterior painting at Hoover school, $900 for a sidewalk at Washington school, $1,000 for furniture and equipment, $1,340 for instructional equipment and $3,650 for a tractor and snowplow.

The $3,000 proposed for installation of an Autocal automatic fire control system at Lincoln school, the oldest school in the city, also was removed from next year's budget. Receipts were refigured and increased $4,000 to represent more federal aids.

Jaycees Set DSA Award for Jan. 25

Outstanding Young Man of 1959
In Twin Cities to be Recognized

Neenah — Plans have been made by committee chairmen for the Distinguished Service award presentation and banquet sponsored by the Neenah-Menasha Junior Chamber of Commerce at the Elks club on January 25.

A major Jaycee project, the DSA award will be given to "the outstanding young man of 1959."

The Neenah-Menasha Jaycees encourage young men to accept the challenge of community service and through the DSA project the Jaycees recognize one outstanding young man as "The Man of the Year" and reward him for his initiative.

The award will be conferred for achievements, leadership and service to the community during the calendar year 1959. All men between 21 and 35 years of age are eligible for the award. Any nominee who has reached 36 years of age during 1959 is eligible for the award based on his activities during the period of the year when he was 35.

Nomination blanks have been sent out to civic groups and organizations in the Twin Cities. The general public also may nominate an individual who meets the qualifications and is encouraged to take part in the project by Ray Durkee, DSA general chairman.

Nomination blanks can be obtained from any Jaycee member. All nominations must be received by the DSA committee not later than midnight on Jan. 4. All nominations are to be sent to Lew Ake, 5111 Keyes street, Menasha. Outstanding citizens of the Twin Cities will be judges.

In addition to selecting the "Man of the Year," the outstanding senior boy from each local high school will receive meritorious service awards at the DSA banquet. Selections are made by the principal and faculty and are based on ability, leadership, achievement and service during all four years of high school.

On Committee.

Assisting Durkee as general chairman will be Lew Ake as nominations chairman; Jim DeWolf, tickets chairman; Jim Payne, judges chairman; Eugene Bahlman, finance chairman; Ron Hanser, high school award chairman; and Cliff Lee, publicity chairman.

The Distinguished Service award was presented to Albert Goerlitz, principal of Taft elementary school in Neenah, as the Twin Cities outstanding young man of 1958. Meritorious service awards were given to David Huelsbeck of St. Mary's High, James Quade of Neenah High and John Pikel of Menasha High school.

Remembers 1958 Cut

Neenah Cautious in Estimating Returns From State Income Tax

Neenah — Recalling last year's big cut in state income tax apportionment received by the city, Neenah officials are being cautious in estimating the income tax return for 1960's budget.

Last year the city received $518,719 in the state income tax, about $60,000 less than was expected. This year it put $594,008 into its budget and next year is placing $590,000 into the budget as the estimated state's return.

The state income tax return to the city this year came to $641,685.

Other tax returns anticipated by the city for next year are $33,000 from the municipal water plant, $32,000 in telephone taxes and $44,000 in public utility taxes. These represent increases of $9,000 for the water plant, $5,600 for the telephone tax and $2,000 for the public utility tax over that budgeted for this year.

Special Assessments. Special assessments are expected to bring in $298,700 next year, far above the $142,050 planned for this year's budget and the $89,600 actually received. Street construction assessments will return an estimated $176,300, sewer work $101,100, sidewalk repairs and construction $10,000, weed cutting $800, snow and ice removal $1,500, plumbing work $1,000 and the Dutch elm disease sanitation program $3,000.

Liquor and beer licenses will provide $5,200 and bicycle licenses $2,000 of the $9,200 anticipated in receipts from licenses. Permits for building, sewer, plumbing, electrical work and other projects will add $4,250 to the anticipated receipts.

Anticipated from court fines, penalties is $7,500 while from the cemetery operations, using the cemetery perpetual care fund and money from bond issues not immediately needed, is estimated at $45,000 for next year, up $16,500 from this year.

Transfer from Surplus. The proposed budget contains a $54,608 transfer from surplus to go against the tax levy and anticipates $34,200 from departmental earnings and reserves.

Receipts for the board of education are estimated at $1,000.

Senior Class Sponsors Greek 'Foster Child'

Neenah Students Vote to Aid Second Youngster for $180

Neenah — Information on its first "foster child" has been received by the Neenah High school senior class which recently sent in another $180 to support a second underprivileged child in a foreign country.

The senior class voted this year to undertake sponsorship of two foreign children as a service project to use the funds it had accumulated during school activities.

The first one selected for their sponsorship is a 10-year-old Greek boy, George Stamatiadis, who lives with his mother and 12-year-old sister in Larissa, Greece. The father is in a mental hospital. Information received this week from the Foster Parents' Plan, Inc., headquarters at New York city, indicated the family's house consists of two rooms, a hall and a kitchen. One of the rooms is rented out for $10 a month so that the family can have some money to pay toward the construction of the house.

3 In Family

The three members of his family live in the other room. Their furniture consists of three single beds, a table, a few chairs and a radio. They have the barest minimum in bedding, clothing and household utensils.

George helps the local vegetable man in his spare time and under the Foster Parents' Plan receives $8 a month to go to food, clothing, and medical care. The family has no subsidy or pension of any kind to help them get by. They have no relatives who can assist them.

Hospital Bills Would Go Up if Run for Profit

Money Would be Available Then for Building Program

Neenah — Admittedly hospital bills are high — but they'd have to be a lot higher if the hospital were operated as a profit-making business as would be the case if individuals were to build and administer the hospital, Gerald Aldridge, hospital administrator, said today.

If the hospital expansion program—for which a $3,850,000 fund drive is now underway—were to be financed as other business expansions (a 20-year bond program at 5 per cent interest) the total cost would be $6 million, nearly double the present voluntary goal. That principal and interest would have to be paid back at a rate of $305,000 a year. Average daily costs to patients at Theda Clark hospital now are $22.11, well under the national average of $28.27 and the state average of $26.01.

Would Go Up

However, daily bills would have to be hiked by more than 25 per cent to cover the amortization costs if the building program were financed through a loan — and that wouldn't allow any profit either. At least an extra $6 would have to be tacked onto each patient's bill each day to cover the construction costs.

Then too, if the hospital were to operate on a profit basis, it would be just good business sense to depreciate the buildings, setting aside a reserve for the time when new buildings would be necessary. That cost too would hike the bill of the patient who already feels his bills are too high.

While Theda Clark Memorial hospital is operated in a business-like way, it cannot finance its expansion program through profits as any other business or industry might, Aldridge added. The reason is there just are no profits.

One objective of the hospital is to provide hospital care at the most economical cost consistent with good practice. Including all income from all sources, including endowments, expenses have exceeded income by nearly a quarter of a million dollars in the 50 years of Theda Clark hospital's operation.

The difference, and the cost of the building itself, in the past has been born largely by a few generous individuals. The hospital is chartered as a non-profit corporation. The 13 trustees are responsible for the administration of the hospital and serve without compensation in any form except the personal satisfaction gained in helping their fellow men, Aldridge explained.

The hospital is neither tax supported nor subsidized by the cities of Neenah or Menasha.

'Ye Old Nip' Beckons to visitors from the corner in the basement of the Robert Piel home, 909 Lincoln street, Menasha. Piel built the bar and faced the walls around it in about a month, using mostly scrap lumber.

'Ye Old Nip' End Result of Stairway-Enclosing Project

Menasha — What started out as a simple project to cut down basement moisture has ended up in a complete recreational room setup, including a bar, at the Robert Piel home, 909 Lincoln street.

Around the bar, on floor joists and walls, are beer merchandising materials from all states except Hawaii and Alaska.

It all began when Piel enclosed the basement stairway and installed a dehumidifier so his son, Bobby, could leave his extensive electric train layout set up year around.

That done, Piel next built a workbench in another corner of the basement. Then in spring 1958, he took on the biggest project — the corner bar. Breweries all over the country helped him out with labels, displays, trays, glasses and coasters. He calls it "Ye Old Nip."

Using mostly scrap lumber from new home projects, he lined the walls on both sides of the bar with 7½-inch squares of plywood. The bar was faced and topped with 4-inch plywood squares. All plywood is treated with a driftwood finish stain and varnish.

sha. Federal funds aren't available either because funds under the Hill-Burton program currently are being allocated to rural areas with far fewer facilities for the treatment of the acutely ill than are available at Theda Clark hospital.

That means that the expansion program for the hospital is entirely dependent upon the generous donations of the citizens of Neenah and Menasha and the surrounding area, Aldridge declared.

2 Youths Caught In Stolen Auto

Neenah — Juvenile court proceedings were requested today by Neenah police for a 17-year-old route 1, Neenah, youth and a 16-year-old Neenah youth in connection with a car theft Thursday night.

The car, owned by Mrs. Hil-da Johnson, route 1, Larsen, was taken from the Theda Clark hospital parking lot and was reported missing at 11 p.m. Neenah police spotted the two youths in the stolen car at 12:01 p.m. at Wright avenue and S. Commercial street.

They said they had taken the car about 9 p.m. and had driven to Menasha, Waverly beach, Appleton, and then back to Neenah and south to Adella beach and were on their way back to the hospital parking lot to return the car when apprehended.

Neenah School Costs Below State, Area Average, Mennes Says

Neenah — Public school expenditures for Neenah are below the state average for both elementary and high school and are lower than nearby school systems, Supt. of Schools Harold B. Mennes declared.

The superintendent said the costs for last year are based on average daily membership as he compared cost statements prepared by the research department of the Wisconsin Education association.

"Over the years the Neenah schools costs have consistently been at or below the average for the state," he said.

Last Year's Costs

The cost for the 1956-59 school year for both elementary and high school has been $323.23 as against a state average of $336. This is based under the new law which sets forth average daily membership rather than the previous method of average daily attendance. The latter figure gives a lower number of pupils on which to base the cost since it takes the average in school each day rather than the average enrollment.

The WEA reports show the average costs for the previous school years, based on average daily attendance rather than average enrollment, to be $255.12 for Neenah and $223.13 for the state in 1950-51; $279.40 for Neenah and $254.06 for the state in 1952-53; $286.69 for Neenah and $264.04 for the state in 1953-54; and $282.95 for Neenah and $277 for the state in 1954-55.

Neenah dropped below the state average in the 1955-56 school year with a cost of $287.91 per average daily attendance against the state average of $294.29. In 1956-57 the figures were $311.41 for Neenah and $312.92 for the state and 1957-58 was $316.41 against $337.86 for the state.

Compared with other schools of similar size and nearby, Neenah's cost of $323.23 of average daily membership was below Appleton's $345.28, Menasha's $387.84, Oshkosh's $357.47 and Manitowoc's $384.73.

Using Wisconsin Public Expenditures survey costs, based on average daily attendance, Neenah would have a cost of $340.38 for the 1956-59 school year which still is below Appleton's $362.64, Menasha's $408.53, Oshkosh's $378.05 and Manitowoc's $407.18, Supt. Mennes indicated.

Turning to the statewide average costs, there are 63 schools higher than Neenah, 12 in the same cost group and 49 with lower costs for elementary school per pupil costs. Using the high school average costs, there are 61 with higher costs, eight with the same cost, and 57 with lower costs.

When the entire school system, both elementary and high school, costs are used, there are 69 cities with higher costs, 12 with the same cost range and 39 with lower costs, according to the Wisconsin Educational association survey.

Oshkosh — Herbert Mader, 44, Rockford, Ill., this morning pleaded innocent to two charges of conspiracy to commit grand larceny in Municipal court.

Municipal Judge S. J. Luchinger deferred further proceedings until next Wednesday to enable Mader's attorney to file an affidavit of prejudice asking a change of venue. Mader is free on $1,500 bond.

Mader and John Vandenhuevel, Oshkosh, now serving a state prison term for embezzlement, are charged with the theft of two autos from the Wertsch Motor company last spring.

and table tree centerpieces were among the homemade holiday decorations made by Menasha Homemaker club members at a Tuesday workshop.

One of the tree centerpieces rows and rows of white nylon net ruffles fastened to a pole, was decorated with miniature ornaments and topped with a winged angel.

A sparkling display of ornaments were shown by Mrs. George Stegert, 236 Seventh street. Styrofoam balls of various shapes were covered with tiny ornaments, wrapped with tinsel, scattered with sequins and surrounded by metallic cut-out material.

Mrs. Stegert uses ordinary sewing pins for attaching small-size ornaments and the larger banker's pin for heavier bulbs. Different shapes may be cut, by purchasing slabs of styrofoam and tracing original or pattern designs.

Grape clusters were formed by aqua, grape colored and cinnamon shaded bubble gum pieces, tied with transparent cellulose and dipped in hot water. Clusters were placed on green leaves and may be used in a table arrangement or as package trim.

Another display was created by wrapping chocolate drops in pink foil paper and sticking with toothpicks into a styrofoam base. Silver and gold ornaments were placed on the tree top. A Christmas play will be given at the Dec. 16 program.

Ohio Garden Leader Says 'Do-It Yourself' Trend Out of Hand

Oshkosh — Early November finds women by the hundreds adding glitter to pinecones, making favors with eggshell faces, tying bows to wreaths and the thousand and one other details required for holiday trim for church bazaars and their homes.

"We've gotten carried away with this whole idea of do-it-yourself," is the unexpected advice of a board member of National Council of State Garden Clubs, Inc., an organization promoting the development of design techniques and flower shows.

Mrs. James R. Otto, Chillicothe, Ohio, guest lecturer Tuesday at Paine Art Center and Arboretum, said, "When you start in on Christmas decorations, it boils down to whether you have more time or money." She explained the influx of Japanese and Italian materials on the market often makes "it cheaper to buy than to make."

Demonstrating her point, Mrs. Otto pointed to a decorated Christmas stocking, imported from Japan. "It takes hours to make this stocking, sewing on the sequins and the price of this stocking is just 75 cents."

Three Themes

For those women who truly enjoy making decorations for their homes and have the time, the attractive blond Ohioan showed several arrangements for three themes, Early American, contemporary and modern.

"You should have a very definite theme, not a conglomeration," she warned. "Once you have decided on what your theme is, stick to it from the front door to the back door."

For an early American theme, she suggested a squared pine cone wreath with cedar and red and green as the color scheme. Candles were clipped to the wreath, backed by a slab of styrofoam.

For a very modern home, Mrs. Otto made a door arrangement with black expansion iron, trimmed with bright red apples and a velveteen finished white ribbon. The ribbon is a new item on the market, plastic coated to make it an outdoor trim, she explained.

"When you use artificial material with fresh material, remember that it must be part of your design," she emphasized.

As she deftly placed buds into a religious themed centerpiece, Mrs. Otto referred to flowers as "hers" and "hims."

"The ones that behave are 'hers' and the ones that are difficult are 'hims,'" she laughed.

Listing arrangement hints as she added finishing touches to the design, Mrs. Otto reminded "all arrangements should have dimension." "Put flowers in deep water and let them soak up all the water they can before you begin arranging. They'll hold up better that way."

"I'm one of those women who if she needs an artichoke for an arrangement, needs it for a dinner party tonight," the garden club leader stated. "I can't wait three months for it to dry."

Disclosing her own method for "hurryring up" the drying process, Mrs. Otto said she asks her grocer for an artichoke he's going to throw out. Then she breaks back the leaves, placing a custard cup in the center.

Place in the oven at a low temperature for all day. "After about eight hours you will have the loveliest gold flower for Thanksgiving." The next day, you can spray it for a Christmas decoration, she added.

has spent the past 12 years developing her talents in garden club work, specializing in promotional work, flower arrangement and development of unique and original containers, advised, "You should try to use things you have, that's the difference between distinction and originality."

To add to the anticipation of youngsters before Christmas, she showed a calendar tree. A green felt yule tree is placed on a white board and colored medallions added for each day of December until Christmas.

Little Nine Season Will Open Tuesday

Hortonville's Thrice-in-a-Row Champions to Face Omro

LITTLE NINE CONFERENCE	W	L
Hortonville	11	2
Shiocton	10	3
Denmark	9	4
Omro	8	5
Hilbert	7	6

The Hortonville High school basketball Polar Bears open defense of their Little Nine conference champions hip Tuesday night against visiting Omro.

The Polar Bears have reigned supreme in the circuit the last three seasons, all under Coach Russ Tiedemann. Hortonville's 4-year Little Nine record, under Tiedemann, is a sensational 48-7.

Other openers Tuesday send Denmark to Wrightstown, Hilbert to Freedom, Reedsville to Shiocton and Winneconne to Bear Creek. Seven of the loop's 10 teams opened their non-league seasons Tuesday night and just two of them posted victories. Freedom shaded Fox Valley Lutheran, 60-54, and Reedsville nipped Brillion, 60-58.

Denmark loses. The losers were: Denmark, to Luxemburg, 54-53; Wrightstown, to Gibraltar Fish Creek, 52-44; Omro, to Weyauwega, 44-43; Bear Creek, to Bowler, 44-36; and Winneconne, to Wautoma, 40-35.

In non-league games to night, Tigerton is at Bear Creek, Hilbert at Stockbridge and Wrightstown at Sevastopol.

Hortonville has four lettermen back from last year's ballclub, including three regulars, Ken Huebner, Gary Kohl and Larry Collar. But, Joe Steffen and Don Otto will be hard to replace.

Ron Akin, who takes over Bob Wilson's basketball duties at Reedsville, is the only new coach.

Reedsville, Winneconne and Shiocton have the greatest number of returning lettermen, six apiece. The Chiefs finished second to Hortonville last season while Reedsville was tied for fifth and Winneconne placed a distant eighth.

The team-by-team rundown:

HORTONVILLE — Dan Laird, 6-3 senior center, is the lone letterman in addition to three returning starters. Huebner (5-11) and Kohl (6-0) are forwards while Collar (6-1) is a forward-center. All are seniors. Other leading prospects are: Dave Ruppel, 6-4 junior center; Roger Mulroy, and Herman Schwebs, both 5-10 junior guards.

SHIOCTON — Coach John Bowers' nucleus includes senior lettermen Earl Conrad, 5-10 senior forward; and Barry Schwandt, 5-9 senior guard. Juniors who lettered last season include John Johnson, 6-1 forward; Henry Winterfeldt, 6-0 center; Ron Engels, 5-8 guard, and Ray Theobald, 5-8 guard. Junior center Bill Allen (6-3) is also a top prospect.

DENMARK — Five senior lettermen are available to coach John Hickey, but all are under 5 feet, 11 inches tall. They include Arnie Gorske (5-9), Lowell Hansen (5-8), Carl Johansson (5-10), Jim Sellner (5-8) and Warren Wellner (5-10).

OMRO — Only two lettermen return but things don't look as black as that might indicate. The JB's dropped just three games and 6-4 senior center Dave Kumbier has transferred from Oshkosh. The monogamees available are: Bob Beck, 6-0 senior forward, and Ed Pollex, 5-7 senior guard. Bill Stiller, 6-2 senior center, and Tom Basel, 6-0 junior forward, are also on hand. Bob Sutherland is the coach.

HILBERT — Four of Ted Burns' five lettermen are under the 6-foot mark. DuWayne Federwitz, 6-3 junior center, is the lone exception. The other vets are: junior forwards Ron Harder (5-9) and Ron Schneider (5-11); Clare Ott, 5-10 senior guard, and Allan Pruess, 5-9 sophomore guard.

Reedsville—Akin, the son of Hortonville principal and former Coach George Akin, has inherited some good-sized veterans. They include: center Rolfe Zipperer (6-2), forward Mel Kiekhaefer (6-3) and forward Darel Stueck (6-3). Other senior monogamees include: 5-10 Frank Foytlik, 5-11 Ken Behnke and 5-5 Ron Grimm, all guards.

Bear Creek—Veteran skipper Frank McClone, a good defensive coach, also has a height problem and lack of experience. The only two lettermen are guard Jim Morneau and 5-11 guard Tom McClone, both seniors. Other leading candidates include: 5-11 center Don Sorensen, 6-1 center Ira Brucks and 5-10 forward Dennis Bechard, all seniors. Brucks is a transfer student.

Winneconne—Ron Mueller, 5-9 senior guard, the top returning scorer here, is out of the lineup for a month with a broken finger. Coach Tom O'Brien's five other lettermen are 6-1 guard Dale Johnson, 5-11 forward Jim Kiesow, 5-10 forward Doug Korn and 5-10 guard Bill Freund, all seniors, and 6-2 soph forward Ron Heath.

Freedom—Pretty good size exists among John Van Egeren's group of five letter-winners. The group includes 6-1 forward Vern Bowers, 6-2 center Wayne Krueger and 6-0 Ken Fredrickson, all seniors and 5-10 Jim Greiner and 5-9 Dave Rickert, both junior guards.

Wrightstown—Cliff Hinkens has just three lettermen back —6-1 Dick Menozzi and 5-6 Paul Hanaway, both seniors, and 6-0 Danny Lamers, a junior. Other top candidates include: 6-3 Cyril Hendricks, 5-8 junior Fred Laack and 5-6 senior Dave Just.

Neenah Bees Open Season Against Fondy

Bartelt Launches Initial Campaign As Rocket Coach

Neenah — The Neenah junior varsity basketball team will launch its first season under Coach Don Bartelt with a 6:45 p.m. contest against Fond du Lac tonight at the spacious Rocket court.

Bartelt, former freshman cage coach, succeeds Charlie Shepard who left the Neenah faculty last spring. Shepard was JV mentor for eight seasons, after succeeding Ivan Williams.

Most of the boys on the 17-man squad were handled by Bartelt on his fine freshman team last year. It consists of 16 sophomores and one junior, John Christianson, out for basketball for the first time.

Fondy, Raider '5s' Invade NHS Court

Veteran Wisconsin Rapids Team Here Saturday Night

Neenah — Wisconsin Rapids, a team picked to finish in the top three in the Wisconsin Valley conference, will be here Saturday night to provide the opposition for the Neenah Rockets when they play their second game in as many days.

The Rockets kick off their campaign here tonight with Fond du Lac of the Fox River Valley conference as the visitor.

Rhineland, which won the championship with a 12-0 league mark a year ago and has six returning lettermen, is chosen to finish ahead of the Raiders and Stevens Point which are rated on a par.

Rapids will be attempting to come back from its worst season in history.

Bill Brenner, who ranked fifth in league scoring with 189 points, is the only missing player. Nine lettermen return but several boys who started against the Rockets last fall weren't on the squad at the close of the season.

Returnees are Dave Rheel, Larry Brennan, Mike Precious, and Larry Helke, starters last year, as well as Dennis Davis, Jack Skibba, Roger Oestrich, Don Fisher and Lloyd Reiman, up from the reserves.

New Rapids Coach Coaching the Raiders is Wesley Mason, in his first season at the Wisconsin Rapids school.

Two big periods sped the Red and White on its way to a 70-58 win at Wisconsin Rapids last season. Neenah scored 25 points in the second frame and 26 in the fourth. The score was tied 44-all going into the final segment.

Bill Kuehl scored 21 points and Jon Halverson had 17 for Neenah and Brennan, who was the only returning letterman, hit 17 for Rapids.

Cite Increasing Number Of Apartment Dwellers

But Trend to Home Ownership Continues Across Country; City, Suburb Moves No Longer 1-Way

BY ANDY LANG
AP Features

Only in a country where population expansion continues at an amazing rate could these two things be true at the same time: More Americans than ever before are becoming home owners. More Americans than ever before are selling their homes to live in apartments.

The values of home ownership in the suburbs are many, not the least of which is the desirability of raising children in more pleasant surroundings than most city areas afford.

This and other compensations of suburban life, as well as the undeniable pleasure of having a financial stake in a home, more than offset any accompanying discomforts, chief among them those associated with commuting long distances.

No Longer 1-Way
Now, however, the movement between the cities and the suburbs is no longer 1-way. Apartment construction in and near cities is proceeding at a record pace. In many cases, an entire apartment house is rented before the building is ready for occupancy.

A considerable portion of this new apartment-dwelling group comes from the ranks

Seek New Application Of Building Products

Asbestos-Cement Latest Item Used In Fresh Fashion in Construction

Manufacturers are constantly seeking new applications of products they already have on the market. In order to demonstrate these new applications, especially in the building materials line, many of them have built model homes using the materials.

As a result, you probably have read about or seen model homes made almost entirely of aluminum or glass or plywood or some other material which previously played only a minor role in the construction of a house.

The latest model home to fall into this category is on display in Oklahoma City. Its principle ingredient is asbestos-cement, up to now used mainly as siding and roofing shingles.

Surprising Feature
One of the most surprising features of this home is the vaulted, arch-supported roof built of asbestos-cement sheets with a center core of foamed lightweight cement. The idea is that they give complete insulation as well as being weatherproof.

The exterior walls also are insulated panels made of asbestos-cement sheets laminated to each side of a foam plastic core center. One of these sheets has a flat surface, while the other has a three-dimensional texture which creates a decorative effect for either exterior or interior wall surfaces.

Another example of the use of an existing product in a different way is the manner in which colored asbestos-cement sheets have been cut into tiles and used as flooring in the living room area, as kitchen counter surfaces and as bathroom walls. Standard asbestos-cement corrugated sheets are used throughout the house as room dividers, as a canopy or screen to the entrance foyer and in landscaping for screens, treewells and fences.

New Material
The jet age is responsible for a new material being used in home oil furnaces. The material, a ceramic felt, originally was designed to insulate high-speed airplanes from the intense heat developed in jet engines. It is produced by a special process which converts molten refractory substances (mostly alumina and silica) into a mass of ceramic fibers, each many times finer than a human hair.

Somewhere along the line, engineers discovered that this light, flexible product had advantageous properties when installed in the fire box of a domestic oil furnace. Manufactured in blanket form and in various thicknesses, the material is cut to fit, rolled up, pushed through a furnace door and patted against the walls of the fire box until a snug fit is achieved. By serving as a new lining for the old walls, it is said to eliminate the need to replace cracked or worn-out fire bricks.

It is claimed to have several advantages over conventional fire bricks. At least two furnace manufacturers now are using it in new furnaces.

Fire Continues As Big Enemy Of U. S. Homes

New Electric Code Should be Checked Before Building

Public enemy No. 1 of the nation's homes continues to be fire.

In planning a new home, it's a good idea to check the new national electrical code recently adopted by the National Fire Protection Association as an extra measure of fire precaution.

While the new code is effective only when adopted locally, it can prove a valuable safety guide and help to prevent overloading a circuit.

For example, the new code requires the use of "Type S" non-removable fuses (you just can't put a penny behind these). This type of fuse prevents overloading a circuit. Other changes include two 20-amp branch circuits, instead of one, for small appliances; and grounded type outlets where equipment is used by a person likely to be standing on grounded conductive materials, such as in the laundry, workshop and garage.

Another way to reduce the home fire hazard is to use fireproof materials such as floor and wall tile, brick and other natural earthen materials.

Well in advance of the heating season home owners are advised to give their furnace systems a thorough check. A smoked chimney flue has been the source of thousands of serious fires, according to national authorities. It's a good idea, too, to run a test check on thermostat controls to avoid overheating, particularly in electric forced air systems.

Hunt Coon in Building

Oklahoma City—A coon hunt took place in the state wildlife department building. A raccoon broke out of a cage and hid in the building. Three coon dogs located the fugitive and it was captured with a rope.

QUESTION: I want to re-regular cement or, even place the area around our kitchen sink with laminated plastic. There is linoleum or some similar kind of material there now. It is very worn but not torn. Can I cement the plastic directly to the present covering?

ANSWER: You should remove the material, even though it can be a messy job. You will find a wooden base under it. If this base is in good condition, remove all foreign substances from it, especially any old cement. The laminated plastic then can be applied to the wood. If you use contact cement, be sure the plastic is set in place properly the first time, since it cannot be shifted once the two surfaces meet. If you use

Obtain Professional Help for Moving Job

There are many ways to keep expenses down when moving from one house, or apartment to another, and that's not to say that you should take on the back-breaking job without professional help.

The job of moving is no job for amateurs; but even when you engage the services of a regular mover, you can help keep the cost down through the exercise of a few simple precautions aimed at expediting the job.

Why should you want to expedite the job? Simply because rates for local moves are based on time, and mileage—an hourly rate for the time spent loading and unloading your household goods and a mileage rate for the distance between your old and new residence.

Mileage Rate
There isn't anything you can do to alter the mileage rate (you are charged on the basis of the most direct route), but anything you do that will enable the mover to complete the loading or unloading in less time will result in a direct saving to you.

From a few suggestions from moving experts:

Provide the mover with clear access to your house or apartment. This is important primarily to apartment dwellers. If your moving date happens to fall on the same day that Mrs. Brown hangs her laundry in the backyard, ask her if she'll hold off until after the movers are through.

If you live on the third floor and Mrs. Smith on the second floor has a clothes line strung out on her back porch, ask her if she'll take it down so that the movers can maneuver the three flights of stairs without the threat of being entangled. Gym sets, swimming pools,

Expect Painters? Make Plans Now

Good Idea to Remove All Small Items From Rooms to be Redone

BY VIVIAN BROWN

If you are expecting the painters, plan your campaign now. The strategy you choose will determine whether you will maintain your equilibrium in the face of the minor disaster to come or succumb to the invasion of the home decorators in rebellious fashion.

It's your attitude and preparation that counts when you are expecting the painters.

A good idea is to remove all small items from all rooms to be painted and put them in a safe place. Remove plates from electric switches and hardware from doors and cabinets if you'd protect them from spatter. Remove pictures from walls so nail holes can be filled.

Clean Rugs, Draperies

If you are planning to have your furniture recovered, this is a good time to send it out. That goes for rugs and draperies, too. It's an ideal time to have them cleaned. You may have everything brought back when the paint job is complete.

Furniture that cannot be removed from a room could be stacked in the center, leaving at least four feet space around the walls for the painter. Cover all the furniture with those old sheets you've been saving for just such a purpose. If you don't have coverings, painters usually are equipped with drop cloths.

If there is a screened-in porch some of the furniture could be moved to that area. If you live in an apartment, furniture can be moved to the last room to be painted, and moved back into its proper spot before the painter gets to that room.

Everything should be removed from closets if they are to be painted. It'll be a messy accumulation of odd stuff, and anything you can weed out for charity or the thrift shop will lessen the burden of shifting things from one place to another.

Use Quality Paint

There are a number of things to settle if you have your painting done by a contractor. Specify that he use quality paint as the price difference between good and inferior paint is small. Labor, not paint, is the chief cost factor.

Get a written agreement from him that specifies exactly what is to be done, how it is to be done, the kind of paint to be applied, and how much the job will cost.

You should select your colors before the painter comes. The contractor will bring a book of color chips with him if you ask him to do so. If none of the colors is what you want, his dealer can probably match paint to any color you prefer. Be sure the colors are definite before the painter begins. Don't give him a little piece of thread or sliver of fabric and expect him to get the right idea about color from it. He'll try the paint on a piece of wood for you while he is mixing it, if you like, so that you can be absolutely sure it is the color you want before he begins.

Space Age Issues Lead in Fairly Active Dealings

New York —(AP)— Space age issues spurred again, inspiring the stock market to a moderate gain early this afternoon. Turnover was fairly lively over-all.

The advance of the pivotal stocks was spotty at best and was borne by the industrials. Leading stocks were up fractions, mainly, with a few chemicals and selected stocks rising a point or so. Rails and utilities did little.

The electronics-missile-rock-et group stole the show with gains running to half a dozen points for Ampex which is being touted in some quarters as a split candidate.

In addition to favorable Wall Street comment for electronics there was a published prediction that space spending is headed for almost double present outlays in the government's next fiscal year.

Steels were narrowly ahead as cautious optimism prevailed on the prospects of negotiated steel settlement before the Taft-Hartley back-to-work injunction expires.

Oils continued backward. Motors were mixed. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 50 cents to $221.90 with the industrials up $1.30 and both the rails and utilities unchanged.

Drug Manufacturing Firm Will Be Sold

Milwaukee —(AP)— Lakeside Laboratories, Inc., an ethical drug manufacturer, is expected to be sold to the Colgate-Palmolive company for $13 million in an exchange of stock.

A spokesman for Lakeside said Thursday that the proposed transaction will be subject to ratification by stockholders but that is expected to be only a formality.

The transaction will result in issuance of 14 shares of Colgate stock for each outstanding share of Lakeside stock.

Board Sets Dress Rules

Shiocton Students Can't Have Open Shirt Collars

Shiocton — All students must keep their shirts buttoned to the top with collars down. No duck tail haircuts will be allowed, the board of education ordered high school students.

Because deer hunting is during the Thanksgiving holidays, the board decided there shall be no absence for hunting.

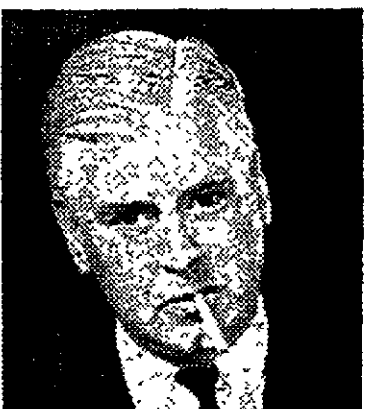

Mrs. Dorothy Corbit, high school history teacher and guidance director discussed, "What is a Good Guidance Program in a Small High School and What It Should Include." Before a program of individual counseling could be set up, the board would need to draw up policies or objectives of the program, she said.

The school purchased a 20-inch band saw for the industrial arts shop at a cost of $275.

Planners Want Members to Pick Proxies

Office Site for Consultant Gets Committee Approval

The executive committee of the regional planning commission agreed Thursday night member cities should be allowed to select alternate representatives to the committee at their own discretion. The plan will be considered for inclusion in the commission by-laws.

Discussion arose out of a suggestion by Neenah Mayor Chester Bell that a council member be authorized to represent cities on the executive committee.

Appleton Mayor Clarence A. Mitchell said he thought any authorized person, including a lay representative, should be allowed to sit on the council.

Committee members agreed each city should be allowed to send the representative it thinks best qualified.

The committee accepted the office site selected for Kenneth L. Schellie, planning consultant. The office, if approved by the city and village councils, will be at 1307 N. Summit street. Rent will cost $80 a month including heat, light and water for 526 square feet of space.

A dissenting vote was cast by Mayor R. G. Du Charme, Menasha, who said he would like to see the office in Menasha.

The committee authorized Chairman Charles Wood to invest $20,000 of the commissions $26,180 budget money in 90-day treasury bonds. Wood said the money would be taken out periodically as needed, and interest earnings could amount to $1,400.

Named to the education committee were S. F. Shattuck, Neenah, chairman, Laurel K. Heaney, Neenah, co-chairman, Martin Unmuth, Appleton, John DeValt, Cornelia Locks, William T. Schleisner, Grand Chute, Julian J. Biecher, Kaukauna, Wilfred Vandenberg, Kimberly, George Vanderloop, Kimberly, James Auer, city of Menasha, Robert Farrell, town of Menasha, and Thomas Catlin, town of Neenah.

Speed Charge Dropped After Investigation

A charge of driving faster than was reasonable was dismissed Thursday in municipal court against Norman F. Vande Loop, 20, route 1, Brillion Corp. Counsel Raymond Dohr asked for the dismissal after he had investigated the case.

Vander Loop was charged after the cement mixing truck he was driving left County Trunk K in the town of Buchanan Aug. 31 on a curve and broke off a utility pole.

Fined for Conduct

Donald L. Ward, 21, Bondel, was fined $31.50 in municipal court Thursday for disorderly conduct. He was charged after a disturbance in the town of Cicero Sept. 13. The arrest was made by Cicero Constable Harold Herman.

Doctors PTA Panelists

Precautions Prevent Children's Diseases

Simple precautions and alertness to danger signs can prevent many childhood diseases and physical disorders, three Appleton specialists told Lincoln school PTA members Thursday night.

Panelists Dr. John H. Russell, Dr. Thomas W. Luther and Dr. John S. Kloehn described upper respiratory and ear disorders, acne, and teeth and jaw disorders. Miss Lucille Lang, school nurse, was the moderator.

Colds or upper respiratory infections probably are usually caught because a child must attend school, Dr. Russell said. "Probably the worst thing you can do for a child's health is send him to school," he recalled out of a college lecture.

Temperature Signal
Generally, however, if a child is running a temperature over 99.8 degrees, he should stay home, he said. If his temperature is over 100 degrees, he should see a doctor, who then can prevent the illness from becoming a lot more serious, Dr. Russell maintained.

Ear infections no longer are the bugaboo of children they once were, he said, because antibiotics can clear them up quickly and thoroughly. Parents with children in Appleton schools no longer need worry that a hearing problem will go undetected. "The schools have a wonderful hearing program," Dr. Russell said. Every child is tested. Those who have some difficulty with the first test are retested, then referred to a doctor if a hearing disorder is noticed.

This year, three children with severe hearing problems were found and now are being treated successfully with aids and preferential seating, he said.

Deafness or less severe hearing problems can be contracted in a variety of ways. A small percentage are born with hearing defects, caused by RH factors or a variety of birth problems. Severe diseases can cause deafness and enlarged tonsils or adenoids can impair hearing. The latter variety is cured easily, Dr. Russell said.

Acne, Dr. Luther declared, is not the province only of the teenager. "You can find it in children as young as 8 and in adults as old as 55," he said. "Age in acne means absolute nothing, nor is it a serious threat to health."

Since the majority of acne occurs in adolescents, it can become an emotional problem, consequently a serious problem, because appearance is important to teenagers. Dr. Luther said dietary restrictions are overemphasized in self-treatment of acne. "It is not caused by things eaten or drunk, but it can be worsened by them," he said. "It also is not an infection, nor is emotion strictly the basis of acne."

Chocolate Bad
Chocolate, but not all sweets, nuts, and colas but not all carbonated beverages, can affect the skin, he said. Almost all other foods do not harm it.

The best treatment for acne is to wash the face three times a day, removing surface oils. If it persists, a doctor can prescribe ultraviolet lights, injections, antibiotics, lotions or X-rays. The treatments vary as the severity of the case varies, with X-rays a last resort.

About 90 per cent of all acne can be cured completely, about 5 per cent can be improved and the other 5 per cent are called refractory cases—ones which cannot be healed or which heal with scars, Dr. Luther said.

He also cautioned parents that not every pimple is a sign of acne, and some disorders can be worsened by acne treatments. "Each skin disorder must be treated separately and sensibly," he concluded.

Dental Objectives
Dr. Kloehn, an orthodontist, described his specialty as the analysis and treatment of abnormally growing teeth and jaws. Orthodonty has three objectives, he said:

1. To guarantee a normal bite, so an individual can eat properly.
2. To help people keep their natural teeth all their lives, resisting decay and preventing dental diseases.
3. To improve appearance, especially when it involves emotional adjustment. This is decidedly the least important objective, Dr. Kloehn maintained.

Fluoridation Good
Decay can best be controlled through fluoridation of the water supply, good oral hygiene and home care of teeth, regular visits to a dentist and adequate control of sugar intake.

Dr. Kloehn recommended brushing teeth after every meal and absolute restriction of all sweets as the best method to prevent decay. But he admitted it is difficult to prevent children from eating sweets. "Then limit sweets to dessert and make your child brush his teeth immediately after eating," he said.

The school system had done a valuable service to the city by hiring a dental hygienist, he said. He also praised King's Daughters for their $1,000 contribution for transportation to and from dentists' offices and for repair materials and many Appleton dentists who donate their time to repairing children's teeth.

Straightening teeth depends strictly on the individual, he emphasized. If a child has deformed teeth, it is up to the orthodontist to decide when treatment should begin and what sort of treatment should be given, he concluded.
